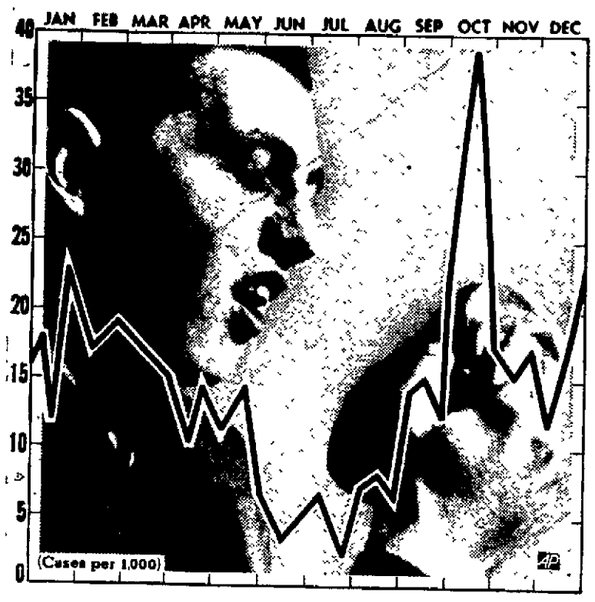
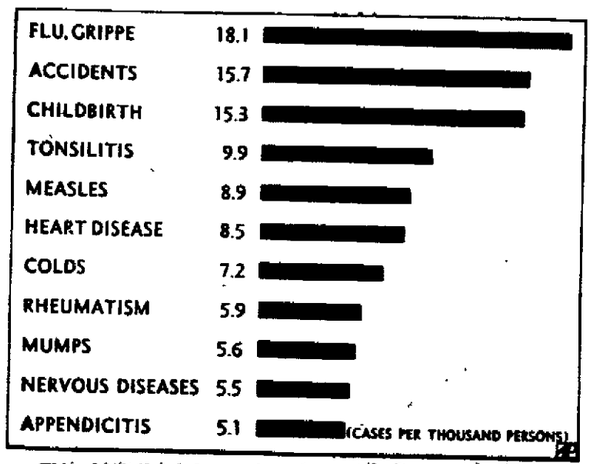
SOVIETS CALL LINDBERGH 'LIAR'

Sneeze Bugs Are Here!



Here's how the sniffles went one year—the "cold curve" for U. S. medical officers' families:



This chart shows how colds ranked among leading causes of disablement.

Chances of Catching A Cold Just Now Are Good.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The coryza (say kor-EYE-za) virus is here again.

It's not a new dance or a drug—just the tiny germ that causes the common cold.

Doctors can't see it even with high powered laboratory microscopes. It slips through porcelain laboratory filters which hold back other bacteria.

They think it is a minute organism. They KNOW that autumn is one of the high points in the year's coryza cycle and that the common cold is toward the top of the list of diesases disabling people for a week or longer each year.

The U. S. Public Health Service also believes the physically fit succumb to colds almost as readily as the weak, although good physical condition helps modify a cold's effects.

Reseachers have discovered that babies are likely to have fewer colds because they are less frequently exposed. Children under five, the Health Service says, are more susceptible than any other age group. Young adults catch colds more often than elderly persons.

While there are no national figures for the common cold, the Health Service offers a sample showing the incidence of the common cold in medical officers' families for two and a half years.

There was a regular decline in colds between April and August the officers found, but during the months of many colds, September to April, the trend was irregular. The chart at top is based on the 1925 study, when the peak was reached in mid-October. The previous year the peak came a few weeks earlier.

The lower chart indicates colds rank high among the ailments causing disablement. It is based on a National Health Survey of 1935-36 in 81 cities wherein 2,308,588 persons were canvassed. Of these, 400,000 were disabled a week or more.

But Here's One Way To Avoid the Pesky Things

Epidemic of fall colds in Grand Rapids, Mich., threatened to interfere with the weekly session of this group. But the women donned hospital masks, avowing they preferred muffled bids to the "sniffles." The players are, left to right: Mrs. Chester Marshall, Mrs. George Peterson, Mrs. James H. Cook and Mrs. E. A. McDonnell. Now if the same stunt was tried on kibitzers!

$50 Fridays, Paid In Milk Bottle Tops To Folks Under 50, New Pension 'Idea'

It's Joe College's Plan for Creating Bigger Prosperity Boom.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Two tongue-in-cheek college students stacked a pile of milk bottle tops on the table today and started campaigning for a new pension scheme—$50 every Friday for folks under 50."

Bill Brown, editor of the Daily Bruin, and Bob Schiller, senior of the University of California at Los Angeles, said they got the idea from the "$30 every Thursday" referendum to be voted on in November by Californians.

"Since the idea of $30 a week for people over 50 is to create widespread prosperity," they said, "we propose to give $50 a week to people under 50, to create still more prosperity."

They outlined these campaign arguments:

1. . . . Younger people (0 to 50) have occasion to spend more money than older people.

2. . . . The pensions would give, to those under 50 something to do while waiting to become 50—it might be called a dress rehearsal.

3. . . . It is more democratic to give everybody pensions than to give pensions to a few.

The milk bottle tops? They would be of $1 denominations and weekly pension payments would be made with them. Every time one changed hands the receiver would pay a penny and punch a hole in the bottle top.

"Thus a top would be self-liquidating. By the time one changed hands 100 times, it would have done away with itself, as well as paid for itself," the pension proponents declared.

"The plan, of course, will attract practically all citizens of the United States to California. That's just what we want. More people mean more purchasing power."

$5,000 Suit Latest of Marital Woes Plaguing Burleigh Grimes

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — The Brooklyn Dodgers announced today that Burleigh Grimes would not manage the team in 1939 and said his successor had not yet been selected.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Marital troubles of Burleigh Grimes, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, were reviewed today with the revelation that Wife No. 1, Mrs. Florence Ruth Grimes, who divorced him eight years ago, has served him with a summons in a $5,000 suit, the nature of which was not revealed.

Last year Mrs. Grimes brought the temperamental baseball player in court on charges he failed to comply with an order to effect a property division.

Mooney Loses In Supreme Court

DENIES REVIEW OF CONVICTION IN BOMB PLOT

Court Leaves Pardon as Only Hope of Labor Leader for Release From Prison.

20-YEAR LEGAL FIGHT

Six to Two Vote Blasts Hope of Lifer Serving for Bomb Killing in 1916.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Blond Anna Marie Hahn, under sentence of death in Ohio as a poison murderess, today was denied an appeal to the supreme court for a writ of review.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The supreme court today denied the petition of Thomas J. Mooney, internationally known labor prisoner, for a writ of review, and thus blasted his hope of obtaining freedom through court action.

The high court's ruling closed a 20-year legal battle. Mooney's only hope for freedom now rests upon an application for a pardon.

Mooney, who was convicted of murder for complicity in the San Francisco preparedness parade bombing of 1916, now is serving a life term in San Quentin prison.

Rejected 6 to 2.

The Mooney petition apparently was rejected by a 6 to 2 vote of the court. It was announced that Justices Hugo Black and Stanley Reed dissented.

No further explanation was given. Presumably the other six justices failed to find a federal constitutional question of sufficient importance in the Mooney case to justify intervention by the court.

The court, without explanation, noted in its denial of Mooney's petition for review, a decision of the California supreme court refusing an appeal for freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. The court has re-

NAMES GLATTKE

American Prison Association Honors Head of O. S. R.

Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of the Ohio state reformatory, who is one of the youngest heads of a penal institution in the country, today had been named to the board of directors of the American Prison association which concluded its annual sessions in St. Paul, Minn., Saturday.

Recognition of the Mansfield man by the national organization is significant in view of the fact that he has been in penal work only three and one-half years. Glattke, a former Toledo high school athletic coach, came to the institution in March, 1935. It was his first connection in penal work.

For the second successive year, Glattke, who is 35, was elected secretary of the Prison Wardens' association which met in conjunction with the annual conference of the American Prison association.

15,000 GO BACK TO AUTO JOBS

Martin Arranges Conference on 32-Hour Week Plan.

DETROIT—(AP)—Fifteen thousand employes of the Briggs Manufacturing company and the Plymouth division of the Chrysler corporation, idle last week because of a dispute over the 32-hour week being sought by the United Auto Workers of America, were back on the job today.

Nine thousand employes of the Mack avenue plant of the Briggs company were thrown out of work Friday because 6,000 at the Plymouth main plant stood at the gates and refused to enter. The Plymouth workers took the position that they had worked a 32-hour week and were finished for the period. They have been working 40 hours weekly.

Homer Martin, president of the UAW, said union spokesmen would meet with Chrysler officials today to discuss the 32-hour week questions.

AUSTRIAN RIOTS SPUR RELIGION

Catholics Predict Attacks Against Church Serve to Create New Sentiment.

(By United Press)

VIENNA — Roman Catholics predicted today that a religious revival would sweep Austria as the result of Nazi riots in which a crucifix, prayer books, and a painting of the Madonna were burned.

Already heavily increased attendance had been noticed at all Catholic church services, even though newspapers had published no reports of the riots and the news was circulated only by word of mouth.

It was forecast that the first real indication of a surge of religious sentiment might be apparent in an increased attendance at schools where religious education is part of the program. Only a week ago priests were compelled to read an official decree announcing that religious education was no longer compulsory. But yesterday, in all churches of the Vienna Archdiocese a circular letter was read from Cardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna and now storm center of the religious controversy, appealing to parents to make their children attend religious-education schools. Many priests urged parents to make sure that their children also received religious education at home.

Nazi authorities seemed to be taking every precaution against a

ROBBERS FIND HE TOLD TRUTH

Hold-up Victim Says He's Broke and Search Proves It.

Two youthful hold-up men didn't believe Thomas J. O'Connor when he told them he was broke.

So they went through his pockets, found nothing and took a sudden departure, O'Connor told police. He said he lived at 242 East Third street, and that the youths accosted him, hands in pockets and demanding money on North Foster street. O'Connor said he was on his way home, at about 12:10 a. m. Sunday.

The youths ran south on Foster street, after finding that O'Connor really didn't have any money, to an automobile in which a third man was waiting and drove away.

Hold Remarks on 'Weak' Air Strength of Powers Gave 'Excuse' for Pact.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia's leading airmen today solemnly denounced Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in a statement accusing him of spreading lies about Soviet air strength to give Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain arguments for the surrender of Czechoslovakia.

The statement, published in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, called Lindbergh a "stupid liar, a lackey and a flatterer of German Fascists." It was signed by 10 Russian war heroes and Civil Aviation Chief Vasily Molowoff.

It accused Lindbergh of telling guests of Lady Astor in London that Germany's air fleet was powerful enough to defeat the combined air strength of France, England, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

His purpose, the statement said,

Testimony given by Charles Ford, 20, colored, during the Serino trial, named Masulla as the triggerman in the Conn shooting.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, October 11.

JUDGING BY the lunar transits, this should prove to be a day of surprises and probably whirlwind occurrences, which might be considered of devastating import. While at first glance the auguries might be deemed portentous, the function of the prevalent Uranian force is to tear down with drastic definiteness so that it may rebuild on firmer and sounder foundations. In this there is the promise of assistance and solid co-operation from an elderly person or old institution. But be ready for sudden events of far-reaching effect.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of rather unpredictable events. They will be sudden, disruptive and far-reaching, with much drastic tearing down and rigid reorganization, so that more progressive and substantial foundations may result. Elders or established institutions may give sound support in such rebuilding programs.

A child born on this day may have outstanding talents, possibly in some sort of unusual line of endeavor, science, invention, aeronautics or some other spectacular line, to which it may apply its profound attention to the exclusion of all other interests.

In-law Trouble Causes Many Rifts

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Why is it that from the beginning of time in-laws have a way of coming together like wrestlers awaiting the sound of the gong?

What Makes Marriage Successful?

If the truth were known, perhaps both sides are victims of fear. In their souls they hope to evade the blight of the word "in-law," thrust upon them like death and taxes; with the best intentions in the world, they don't seem able to sidestep it.

If the mother-in-law has to live in her son's house, she is regarded as the firebrand. In the years in which I have done this column, I've had heart-breaking letters from older women who have sold their own homes, turned the proceeds over to their sons and daughters and have gone to live with them, as a fair exchange.

These women may have slaved to educate their children and to give them a start in life. The obligation of looking after mother in her old age has been implied, if not put in writing, but these women have lived to know the taste of bitter bread, to grope their way up the back stairs of a house which they have often helped to buy.

On the other hand, there are mothers-in-laws who deserve all the name stands for. Of this school is the possessive type of mother. Her son was her little pet and plaything. When he married, she expected to find two little pets to boss unmercifully, and her disappointment has made her peevish and grouchy.

Of the two, the younger woman, with all of life before her, is the favored one in the race.

With tact, reserve and large doses of common sense, the embattled relationship of two women who love the same man can be made into something not only beautiful but also profitable. Who is so safe to leave the children with when the young father and mother have a yearning to go out? Who is so devoted in illness? Who is so ready to make the best of things?

The unreasoning jealousy of a son's wife and his mother, when it exists, is as stupid as it's unnatural. The love that a normal man feels toward these two women is as far apart as the poles, and it's perverse, unwholesome and downright psychopathic to confuse these two.

Give Scalp Massage Treatments

By MME. QUI VIVE

Did your glorious crest get baked, fried, boiled and frizzled during the bathing season? Did you go hatless for weeks, never give your fuzzy dome a thought? That's the way it goes.

If you haven't a hair brush with firm bristles, buy one. Get one with a narrow back, bristles set in groups far apart. The old fashioned wide brush with bristles placed closely together doesn't curry the hair shafts as it should. Use the brush with a rolling motion. Hold each strand away from the head. Make a business of this beauty chore. Do it right.

See that the scalp is groomed. What you're after is to stimulate sebaceous glands, the oiling system of the glory crown. Brushing does that.

Get some ordinary mineral oil, sold at any drug store; purchase a large medicine dropper. Part the hair at various places beginning above one ear and working over to the other, trickling the oil along the partings. That's the best way to distribute it evenly. If the oil is warm, so much the better; the flesh laps it up quickly. Spread out fingers and thumbs, friction vigorously.

That is not the end of the treatment. Lift the flesh of the scalp. Make every effort to loosen it from its moorings. Thumb the nape line and the back of the neck. There are large arteries there that, when roused, urge blood streams to carry nourishment to the hair roots.

When the brain mat has been well lubricated and the scalp massaged, wring a towel out of hot water, wind it about the head, give it a prolonged steaming.

Don't tell us that this will destroy your finger wave. As if we don't know it! It will annihilate it. For that reason the time for your oil and steam treatment is is the night before the shampoo.

If you can indulge in this form of hair and scalp care twice a week your locks will perk up, be normal. Oil should be left on overnight if results are to be speedy.

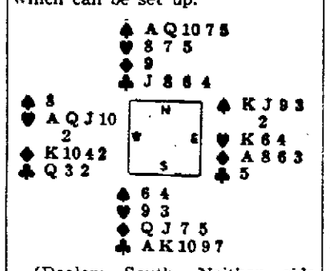
How should South play for his contract of 4-Spades after the lead of the heart J?

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

MIXING THEM UP

AMONG THE MOST interesting declarer's jobs are those which require the use of several different kinds of moves to eliminate losers. Adroitness is needed frequently when some losers can best be ruffed and others parked on cards which can be set up.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable).

After a pass by South, West bid 1-Heart on this deal. North overcalled with 1-Spade, East called 2-Hearts, South 3-Clubs, West 3-Hearts, North 4-Clubs and East 4-Hearts. South feared the sacrifice would be too costly, so passed.

North led the club 4, which South took with the K. He returned the heart 9, which West won with the 10. The spade 8 was then led and North went in with his A to return the heart 7. After winning with the J, West ruffed the club 3 with the heart K. He then ruffed a spade and drew North's last trump. Next came a diamond to the A and on the spade K the club Q was tossed. The diamond 10 was then finessed and followed by the diamond K and heart Q. A diamond trick was then given up.

At trick three, West can ruff a club and regain the lead with the diamond K to ruff his second club, but if the diamonds are 4-1 he may be set. It all would depend on how he played the suit. If he played the K first, he would have had two diamond losers. With the spade A being placed in the North hand it was safer to establish the K for a club sluff, so that only one club had to be ruffed. This play enabled West to regain an entry with a spade ruff to take out the remaining trump.

New Recipes For Potato Dishes

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

New potatoes are very nice, but the good cook can make old potatoes just as attractive and tasty as the new variety. Slimming and reducing may go on apace, but, just the same, there are few households where potatoes do not appear on the menu almost every day.

At our house we like potatoes creamed or browned. To cream potatoes we boil them in their skins, then peel and chop coarsely. Make a good white sauce flavored with mace and other tasty seasonings and heat the potatoes in this.

We brown potatoes by cooking them in their skins, peeling and chopping coarsely. Mix with salt, pepper, a little chopped parsley and, if liked, a little chopped onion. Fry in one-half gill of bacon fat, press to one side to make a cake, then brown on both sides.

A nice way of serving leftover mashed potatoes is always welcome. Mix any cold mashed potatoes with a beaten egg, pepper, salt, a pinch of mixed herbs and a grated onion. Roll into balls, brush over with beaten egg, sprinkle with bread crumbs, then fry in hot fat until well browned. Drain and serve with a nice gravy.

Fried Potato Scones.

Fried potato scones is a nice dish to serve with meat. Ingredients call for a pound of potatoes, an ounce of butter, four ounces flour, a pinch of salt and two tablespoons milk. Put potatoes in basin and season well to taste. Melt butter in milk and mix to a paste. Cut into shape and fry for about four minutes. Serve with any meat.

Most every cook has a pet recipe for potato dumplings, and so we offer our recipe. Make a puree of cooked potatoes with salt, pepper, a little milk and some butter. Allow one-half pound of flour to each pound of potato, roll out and cut with a pastry cutter. Heat some fat in a deep saucepan to boiling point, drop in two or three dumplings at a time. Drain well and sprinkle with salt before serving.

A nice dish is made with cold mashed potatoes, two eggs, one-half cup milk, an ounce of butter, pepper and salt. Put the milk and butter in a pan, add the potatoes and the egg yolks, well beaten, also the seasonings, then stir well over flame. Whip the egg whites stiffly, folding lightly into potato mixture. Turn into baking dish and bake.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

At Mary's query, and more especially at the tone which clothed it, I felt a recurrence of the doubting chill which had swept me at her reaction to the news that Philip Veritzen knew nothing of Noel's trip to the city to see her.

"We haven't set any particular limit on his stay," I said slowly.

"But," she said, her tone holding a sudden shrillness, of which I think she was unconscious, "what will happen to my work?"

"Nothing," I said soothingly. "I shall be at the same hotel, you know, only in a different suite. We can go on with the daily drill just the same."

Her face did not lighten, and I stared at her with chilled amazement.

"No, we can't," she said with conviction in her voice.

"Why not?" I answered, conscious of a certain uncontrollable acerbity in my voice.

"Because," she said with decision, "you don't know Noel."

"You mustn't get me wrong," she said, and I realized that she had sensed the disapproval I was feeling. "You ought to know how terribly glad I shall be to see Noel again."

"But," she went on slowly, "I don't know how I'm going to manage to get my work done, nevertheless. You see—" her hands began to twist nervously, one over the other, with a movement as if she were washing them "—Noel isn't exactly enthusiastic about my work. To tell you the truth, I think he's a little jealous of it. And I just know that if we were together, and I wanted to take time out to rehearse—hours and hours, as I do every day—he'd be hurt and sulky, and we might wind up in a row. And wouldn't that be lovely?"

"No, that wouldn't be very pleasant," I said mechanically, wondering if Mary realized how much she was revealing to me. It was the first criticism of her husband I ever had heard her utter, and I was not surprised the next instant to hear her voice frantically beseeching me to "forget it."

"I don't know what made me say that," she said. "I really don't mean it a bit. Noel's terribly sweet, and I'm sure everything will be all right. Promise me you won't hint anything to him of what I said."

"Of course not, Mary," I assured her sincerely.

"If you don't mind," I said hesitatingly, "don't say anything to him about your work until I have a chance to talk to him. Don't worry!"—she gave a little start of dismay—"I shan't give him the slightest hint that you have said anything to me, but I think I can manage so that he won't object to your work. Will you leave it all to me?"

"You know I'll be glad to, you best of all good aunts," she said. "And, somehow, I have faith that you will be able to work miracles. I've seen you in action before, you know. And it would be too, too divine to be able to see Noel without letting my practice suffer. Otherwise—"

She did not finish her sentence, but I pretended not to notice the abrupt breaking off of her voice.

"I'll do my best," I told her, ignoring her last word. "And here comes our hot milk," as a knock sounded upon the door. "Get into bed at once, and I'll bring you a drink of the milk and the sedative."

Appetite Appeal In These

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
(Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.)

With school days engaging the youngsters — and consequently much of the whole family's time— we are all looking for recipes that are practical in every way. Ease of preparation, time saving, and economy are all sought, as well as those recipes which provide the appetite appeal and nutrition so vital. Here we have endeavored to supply these Autumn requirements in some new recipes.

Cauliflower Cottage Cheese Timbales.

1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs
1 teaspoon grated onion
Salt and pepper

Breakfast Table Favorite

ALL-BRAN WAFFLES SUPREME: 2 eggs, 1½ cups milk, ¼ cup all-bran, 1½ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup melted fat. Separate eggs Beat egg yolks well; add milk and all-bran, let soak until most of moisture is taken up Sift flour with baking powder, salt and sugar. Add sifted dry ingredients to liquid mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Add melted and cooled fat. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on hot waffle iron until no steam is visible. Yield; seven waffles (6½ inches in diameter).

Deep-Fat Tricks

If you do much deep-fat frying, you will save time by using a frying basket Immerse it in deep hot fat, bringing it up, add the foods and quickly drop it back into the fat Fry until done, then remove the basket and let the food to drip dry. Doughnuts, fritters, and croquettes can be easily fried in a basket.

Simple Menus Favored By Recent Brides

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

This is the season for menus for two. For all over the country brides and bridegrooms are establishing new homes.

The wise bride will start out by planning simple meals and serving them as attractively as possible. When she has established herself as an A No. 1 cook, she can branch into untried realms of cookery. Once her daily meals become "top-notchers" her party plans will fall easily into line.

New home-makers learn through experience, practice, observation and comparison. Frequent trips to food shops enable them to learn values and compare costs and quantities.

Meats are often an enigma at first.

It's best for the bride-cook not to buy large roasts because that will mean left-over meat and utilizing left-overs takes real skill.

Chops, steaks, frying meats, small pot roasts, picnic hams, half-smoked ham, cold meats, liver and fish are more suitable.

The Same, But Different.

There's one meat trick the new cook should get down pat—serving the same cut often but varying its cooking.

Select rib and loin chops from lamb, veal or pork, for instance, and prepare them these ways:

1. Broil or pan-cook them and then season them with butter, salt and pepper.
2. Roll them in flour, or egg, and crumbs. Brown them in small quantities or fat and then bake or cook them on top of the stove, adding a little water foir moisture.
3. Prepare them Creole style by covering them with flour, sprinkling them with high seasonings (onions, green peppers and celery will help) and cooking them in enough tomato juice to cover.
4. Smother them. First roll them in flour. Then bake them with milk and vegetables in a casserole.

Boiled vegetables always should be drained thoroughly as soon as they are done. Otherwise they will become water-soaked and unpalatable. They may be re-heated if necessary, by cooking them for five minutes in a tightly-covered pan over a low heat.

Other Helps For Brides.

Make pie dough in double amounts. Store the leftover, unbaked dough in waxed paper in the refrigerator. Use it up during the week after it is made—in tart or pastry cases, to be filled with creamed foods for the main course or with sweet sauces, fruit or frozen foods for dessert.

Keep three kinds of salad dressings on hand in the refrigerator.

French dressing, boiled dressing and mayonnaise will do. They may be used in all sorts of salads —with a little juggling. To add to the variety you may combine one or more of them with relishes, diced vegetables and numerous seasonings.

Ginger 'N Orange

For something different for luncheon or dinner dessert, try gingerbread with raisins in it topped with orange hard sauce.

Pancake Topping

Make maple cream to serve over hot cakes, waffles or biscuits. Mix one cup of shaved maple sugar, a third of a cup of soft butter, two tablespoons of hot cream, one teaspoon of vanilla and an eighth of a teaspoon of sait.

A. F. of L. Votes Today on Move to Reject CIO Reunion

COMMUNISTIC ELEMENTS HIT IN RESOLUTION

Points Out Threat to Labor Movement; Ballot on NLRB Membership, Criticism.

(By International News Service)

HOUSTON, Tex.—The American Federation of Labor annual convention late this afternoon will be asked by its resolutions committee to adopt a report saying the A. F. of L. wants no reunion of any kind with John L. Lewis' CIO under its present leadership.

CIO leadership today, the report will say, is honeycombed with communism, ambitiously reaching out for control of the labor movement in America. That was not true a year ago, although there were communistic elements in the CIO then, the report will say. Now, it will add, communism is a definite threat to the CIO movement, and if the CIO were welded to the A. F. of L. with present CIO leadership intact would become in turn a threat to the entire American labor movement.

During the morning session the resolutions committee planned to ask the convention to adopt:

1. A report calling on labor to fight to block senate confirmation of labor relations board member Donald Wakefield Smith, reappointed during the summer to serve a second term, by President Roosevelt.

Criticizes Entire Board.

2. A report sharply critical to the personnel of the labor board as a whole, with the exception of Chairman J. Warren Madden, and attacking its decisions as favoring the CIO and against the A. F. of L.

Broad outlines of the resolutions committee report were revealed to International News Service today by one of those who helped draft it.

The report, bristling with opposition to the Roosevelt administration, shattered hopes for peace moves between the A. F. of L. and the CIO., It swept aside a direct plea of President Roosevelt addressed to the convention last Wednesday, asking labor to settle its internal quarrels and present a united front. International News Service's informant disclosed that "passing reference" would be made to the president's plea in the report, but that this reference would be brief.

Major leaders of the federation who control powerful blocks of votes in the convention were ready to fight to the end for adoption of the resolutions committee report, and conceded there may be a fight. Daniel J. Tobin, president of the teamsters, on Friday proposed that the federation take the lead in making overtures of John Lewis for reopening of peace conferences between the rival labor factions.

WOODWARD GETS TOWNSEND O. K.

Congressional Candidate Endorsed By State Headquarters.

State headquarters of the Townsend club today had endorsed the candidacy of Walter B. Woodward, Bellville Republican, who is seeking election as 17th district congressman, dispatches from Columbus said today. Woodward is an ardent Townsend supporter.

The state headquarters of the club gave out 15 endorsements in congressional contests, but did not make an endorsement in the governor's race nor for other state offices.

Robert A. Taft, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, was given the club's endorsement. A majority of the endorsement went to Republicans, although some Democrats were favored.

MRS. STICKLE, 30, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Brief Illness Fatal To Mother of Four; Funeral Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Edith Stickle, 30, of 404 South Diamond street, died Sunday in General hospital after a brief illness. She was born in Mt. Vernon, April 20, 1908.

Surviving are her husband, Edward; two sons, Jonnie and Robert; two daughters, Marjorie and Irene; her mother, Mrs. Sadie Wilson of Mt. Vernon; two sisters, Miss Edna Simpkins and Mrs. Lena Hinger of Newark; and four brothers, John Simpkins of Mt. Vernon and Richard, James and William Simpkins of Newark.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday with Rev. S. R. Parrett officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

ARNOLD RITES TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Mabel Arnold, 42, of 111½ North Main street, who died in the General hospital Friday, were held at the Jones funeral home today with Rev. Milton Engelhardt, assistant pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial was in Mansfield cemetery.

Hunt Driver Who Killed Youth In Scuffle

Up and Down THE STREET

It isn't often that you can gather walnuts and violets at the same time, but Mrs. Fern Berry, 115 Rae avenue, did just that yesterday when she and a party of friends went after walnuts just off the Loudonville road. Despite the recent frosts which have brought down the walnuts, there was a patch of wild violets in full bloom.

* * *

W. W. Purdy, 408 Park avenue west, is the object these days of a lot of kidding about a recent "hunting" expedition. According to his friends, it seems that he recently took out a hunting license, donned hunting togs and set forth for the woods. He parked the car and had gone considerable distance before he sighted a squirrel. It was only then that he realized that an important feature of a hunting trip is a gun—and he had forgotten to bring one.

* * *

Mansfielders made good use of the perfect fall weather yesterday, hundreds of them motoring to Mohican State park near Loudonville and other picnic grounds nearby to have a last fling at an outing in the "great outdoors." Highways and even country roads near the city were jammed with automobiles, and officers said traffic was as heavy as at any time during the past summer.

* * *

State highway patrolmen are very obliging officers. Saturday night at the Loudonville fair Patrolmen L. D. Alexander and C. B. Tieben of the Mansfield substation proved it. They went out of their way to see that a Mansfielder, who had become "stranded" from his party, in the early morning hours, got home safe and sound. They invited him to ride with them in the patrol car and "taxied" him to his front door.

DEATH TOLL IN PLANE CRASH 4

Craft Plunges 4,000 Feet Into Building, Killing Occupant; 2 Passengers, Pilot Die.

(By International News Service)

EAU CLAIRE, Wis.—The toll of an airplane's 4,000 foot plunge into a building in Eau Claire's east side residential district was raised to four early today.

Pilot Willis Kysor, 33, of Niles, Mich., succumbed to the burns and injuries he suffered when the plane exploded and he was thrown 20 feet to the street, his clothing ablaze.

Two passengers and the elderly occupant of the apartment on the second floor of the frame structure were killed instantly. They were James Small, 25, of Marion, Ky., a survey expert for Abrams Aerial Surveys, Lansing, Mich., and Orlie Berkley, 24 a Eau Claire photographer, and Robert E. Butler, 64, who lived in the building.

Small and Berkley had been photographing the city for a week as a part of the state's mapping service and took off yesterday afternoon for one of their final flights. Kysor found the weather unsuitable to flying and started back to the airport.

"Suddenly," he said before lapsing into unconsciousness after the crash, "something seemed to fail off of the plane. I don't know what it was. We started a dive as I was looking around for a vacant lot to land in."

The plane ripped through the roof crushing Butler and burst into flames as the gasoline tank exploded. Berkley and Small were trapped in the flames and neighbors were driven back by the heat when they tried to rescue the men whose agonized cries could be plainly heard.

TRUSTY ESCAPES

Inmate Who Fled From Farm at O.S.R. Still at Large.

A trusty who fled from the farm at the Ohio State reformatory yesterday was still at large today. He is Thomas Galik, 25, of Cuyahoga county, who was under sentence from one to 20 years for auto theft. He was received at the institution March 18, 1937.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said Galik was reported missing at 4 p. m. from the hog farm where he was at work as a trusty. A posse of guards searched the grounds until after dark without finding any trace of the fugitive.

OFFICERS TOLD GUNMAN POSED AS POLICEMAN

Menaces 3 With Gun, Shoots as Boy, 18, Attempts to Seize Weapon.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI — Working on slim clues, police hunted today for a man who engaged in a fatal scuffle with an 18-year-old boy who rebuked him following a near collision of their automobiles.

Police Sergeant William Burks counted on a cleaner's identification number tag in a grey hat found at the scene of the shooting early Sunday to give some lead in the death of Edward R. Andres after the man had lined up Andres and three companions, one 16-year-old Rosemary Andrew, at gunpoint.

A license number taken by another witness from the man's fleeing car, Sergeant Burks said, proved to have been issued for another make of car, a 1921 model.

The other two youths were William Lostetter, 17, and Elmer Wirth, 19. Wirth told this story to Burks, head of the homicide squad:

Collision Avoided.

The quartet had been dancing at a cafe and when it closed started for a restaurant to get sandwiches, with Andres driving. At a corner an automobile ahead suddenly made a left turn and Andres swerved sharply to avoid a collision. Andres told the man he should have signaled and got this reply:

"Follow me and I'll show you some entertainment."

They followed his car to a dark spot near a cemetery, stopped and waited. He came back from his car with a flashlight and a pistol.

"I was standing next to Andres," Wirth said. "He (the motorist) stood about three feet in front of us and, pointing his gun, said, 'Keep lined up the way you are. You're talking to a deputy.' Now you ain't so tough'."

Wirth changed his stance and the man knocked him down with the gun but fell himself, he said.

"Ed," he continued, "made a quick lunge to get the gun away from him. They were rolling around and all of a sudden the gun went off three times.

"Ed just sprawled out in the road. He hardly moved. The fellow with the gun got to his feet and walked to his machine. We put Ed in our car and took him to the hospital. But he was dead."

Coroner Frank M. Coppock, jr., reported Andres had been shot once in the back of the head with a small calibre gun.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Mr. Average American Wants to Know About Our National Defense

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—George Spelvin, the average American, has been asking some questions lately which I pass along to the war department.

Mr. Spelvin read a story in the Saturday Evening Post a few months ago by an American officer who had just done a trick as official observer in Spain, which said that the Germans had an anti-aircraft gun which, in the words of a World war humorist would git you if they just wrote your name on the shell. The missile had a touchy snout which would explode on impact with a plane and blow the ship to splinters, and their gunnery and apparatus were so smart that it was death, certain-sure, to fly within their keep.

Well, recently, Al Williams, one of our most famous military flyers and certainly our most understandable writer on aerial attack and defense, wrote that two miles is the altitude limit for anti-aircraft fire. He gave the Germans and Italians all the best of it in attack.

* * *

On the basis of this and other fragmentary reading, Mr. Spelvin was crowded in the direction of an alarmed belief that the Germans were now the bull of the woods upstairs, too fast and strong for us, including any conceivable combination of our pals, in bombing and fighting, and too well armed both in volume and accuracy of fire from the ground to permit any hope of our bombing them back.

Now, Thursday, Mr. Spelvin read a Washington dispatch, which said that by next summer our army intended to have 300 or 400 of the world's most effective anti-aircraft guns, or, as he estimated, a little less than half enough guns to defend for a few days against determined bombing the ammunition plants in Bridgeport, Conn.

* * *

The war department had seemed rather proud of this promise, but Mr. Spelvin permitted himself to ask what the war department was fixing to do about the defensive requirements of the whole Atlantic coast from Bath, Me., to Newport News, and all the works and centers of transportation and population as far west as Pittsburgh. He realized, also, that there might arise some defensive problems in the cities of the Great Lakes, the west coast and the gulf.

The Washington dispatch said these guns could fire five or six miles straight up, and Spelvin was inclined to fear that a newspaper reporter might have less expert knowledge of anti-aircraft fire than Maj. Williams, who had said two miles was tops.

Mr. Spelvin also referred to his reading on the American armament in the World war, including that book called "Fighting Fools," by James E. Edmonds, a National Guard brigadier, and the dismal contrast between our windy boasts and the actual production of fighting stuff.

* * *

The American soldiers fought largely with borrowed arms and borrowed ammunition. The Americans had to "obtain" 5,300 heavy machine guns and 34,000 automatic rifles from the French and British.

Of 2,251 field pieces, only 130 were American made, and only one artillery shell of every million fired by the Americans was manufactured in the United States.

Mr. Spelvin also has read that the American army had only 55 serviceable planes on entering the World war and that, notwithstanding a loud-mouthed promise to "darken the skies" over Germany with ships "raining death from the air," only 667 ships of American manufacture ever saw action.

Mr. Spelvin said he wished someone who knows the truth about this country's ability to defend itself and knows how to tell the truth compactly for the common understanding would let him know just how we stand.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The new face—subject of so many lovely ditties from Hollywood's casting directors who claim to want it—is having its turn this year in earnest.

Unless you've given up looking for reasons in the things that Hollywood does, you can find one—or two or three—good reasons for this trend toward experimenting with untried or scarcely tried talent.

Generally, a new face isn't as costly as a famous one—and Hollywood, scared by talk of war which would hamper its income seriously, is looking for penny-saving devices. A general paring of contract lists is going on, not because the people pared are of no use, but because it's cheaper to get them as needed by the picture than to pay them week after week.

* * *

SPECIFICALLY, though, Hollywood has been having unusually good luck with "new faces," and that always sends the newcomers' stock soaring. I imagine Louis B. Mayer shudders every time he thinks what might have happened if he hadn't loaned Hedy Lamarr for "Algiers." The bright feminine star of the year might have been undiscovered.

"Four Daughters," more even than Hedy, offered incentive to producers to look around and try things. Here was a picture without a real "name" in it—and Warner's got for their experiment four good star bets in John Garfield, Jeffrey Lynn, Gale Page and Priscilla Lane. Lynn's opportunity came perforce, not through Warner foresight. They wanted Errol Flynn, and Flynn wanted to keep on boating. They had to use somebody, and there was Jeff Lynn.

Ellen Drew, the soda-fountain Cinderella, looked like just another ingenue with Crosby in "Sing You Sinners." She was lucky to get that much of a break, however. My guess is they gave it to her because a Crosby leading lady doesn't have much to do, anyway, and a new girl wouldn't add to the overhead like a more experienced higher-paid contractee. Frank Lloyd must have seen more in the girl than most of us, because he tried her for "If I Were King"—and Ellen Drew showed us all that she has the dramatic goods.

*

VINCENT PRICE, the handsome "Victoria Regina" lead with Helen Hayes, wasn't so much of a gamble. Universal has him with Constance Bennett in "Service de-Luxe," introducing him as a co-star, and has great hopes that film fans will like him. They should.

Out at Metro the starlets are thriving. Ruth Hussey showed more than promise in "Rich Man, Poor Girl," which also gave Lana Turner a likeable role. They think well of Ann Morriss, Ilona Massey and Miliza Korjus.

Striding toward greater things, after slow beginnings, are Marie Wilson, Ann Sheridan, Jane Bryan, Lynn Bari, Dorris Bowdon, Arleen Whelan and Dorothea Kent, among many others.

In the juvenile department the new finds include Janet Chapman, Terry Kilburn, Irene Dare, Gene Reynolds, Johnnie Russell and Bobs Watson—the last-named a sure thing after "Boys Town." And one of the brightest prospects is that little Leni Lynn, the girl singer Passaic, N. J., sent to Hollywood with its own nickels and dimes, confident she would win.

World Series Comes to Sudden and Sad End for Cubs

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The 1938 world series of baseball passed away quietly last evening at the Yankee stadium before 60,000 bored relations, with Rufus Ruffing pitching and Bill Dickey catching. Please do not send flowers.

The fact that the New York Yankees, in beating the Chicago Cubs four straight, established a record of three consecutive series triumphs over the struggling National league does not somehow seem exciting. The only happy feature of the series lay in the fact that none of the Cubs was seriously hurt by an infield grounder.

It never was a contest, from the time the Cubs' infield blew up in the opening game until the Yankees scored four runs off four (count 'em) pitchers in the eighth inning yesterday to make the final result 8 to 3.

The Cubs got stretches of magnificent pitching from Bill Lee, Dizzy Dean and Clay Bryant, and they banged out a lot of good hits, first and last. But their pitchers invariably were knocked for a loop before the end of the game, and their hits for the most part were futile, pecking blows that only annoyed the Yankee moundsmen.

There was a sort of unofficial contest last night, trying to pick the individual hero of the massacre. It was called off because it threatened to wind up in a fist-fight between the supporters of Charley Ruffing, who pitched two victories; Joe Gordon, the rookie whose home run upset Bryant in the third game; and Frankie Crosetti, whose fielding at shortstop cracked the Cubs' spirit in the first game and whose home run wrecked Dizzy Dean's fine effort in the second.

Never did a club more vividly demonstrate the value of power hitting than did the Yanks this time. They belted five home runs, and three of them virtually were game winners. Tommy Henrich's four-master off Charlie Root in the sixth inning was the winning run of yesterday's game, notwithstanding the Cubs' blow-up in the eighth.

The blow-up, incidentally, came just when it looked like the Cubs might get into the ball game. Ken O'Dea, substitute Chicago catcher, had smacked a home run in the first of the eighth with Phil Cavaretta on base, reducing the Yankees' lead to 4 to 3.

And that was when the Cubs began using their pitchers in squads and the game became a shambles.

Rookie Gordon Hero of Yanks' Series Victory.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Touch second base and you have the hero and the goat of the 1938 world series.

The hero, of course, is a member of the New York Yankees—those assassins who have done something no other ball club ever did—blasted their way to their third consecutive world championship by knocking off the Chicago Cubs in four straight games.

For the hero, Col. Jacob Ruppert gives you—Joe Gordon, a modest rookie who was nicknamed "Flash" by somebody who knew what he was talking about.

For the goat, the box score gives you—Billy Herman, a weak sister at bat all through the series and a blunderer afield who made costly errors when the blue chips were down.

The Yanks took the last game, 8 to 3. Hartnett used his every resource, mustered every ounce of his team's strength in an effort to stave off the inevitable for one more day.

Lee was pitching his heart out and was doing a good job too up to the second inning, when, much as had happened in the first game, an error of a teammate made his efforts useless. The offender this time was Jurges. He threw away a batted grounder. The Yanks capitalized on it for three runs.

The Cubs got an unearned run in the fourth without making a hit, thanks to an error by Gordon.

Then came the eighth and a revival of Cub hopes, promptly snuffed when the Yanks got their turn at bat. Cavaretta doubled and Catcher O'Dea, whom Hartnett had sent in benching himself, drove a homer into the stands, bringing the Cubs up to one run behind the Yanks.

This set the Yanks off and in their half, they raised safeties all over the place, and scored four runs.

Tygers Seek Revenge for Lone 1937 Loss at Sandusky

Toledo, Dayton Meet In Top Ohio Contest

Put Unmarred Records on Block Saturday.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Someone should take a fairly firm grasp on the mythical state grid championship Saturday in Dayton university's stadium as Toledo's powerful Rockets tangle with the Flyers in the standout contest within Ohio's borders this week-end.

A year ago the lake shore outfit handed the charges of Harry Baujan a 12 to 7 defeat, after the Flyers had chalked up six victories in a row, but Toledo has a tougher chore this season. The sophomore backs of 1937 are juniors now, with a season's experience, and Baujan has them clicking to such an extent that they are leading the state in scoring. Toledo and Dayton have won three in a row.

The two Titans are knotted with five other squads in the unbeaten list, but only Western Reserve is rated on a par with Toledo and Dayton in the early-season skirmishing.

With Ohio State invading Evanston, Ill., for a tilt with Northwestern, the smaller-college frays take on added importance this week.

Among the top-notch engagements are: unbeaten Wooster and Case at Cleveland, Baldwin-Wallace at Western Reserve, Transylvania at Xavier, and Ohio university at Ohio Wesleyan.

Others are: Thursday night, John Carroll at Youngstown; Friday, St. Mary's of Orchard Lake, Mich., at Defiance; Saturday, Capital at Kenyon, Ohio Northern at Ashland, Muskingum at Heidelberg, Marietta at Denison, Mount Union at Otterbein, Wittenberg at Bowling Green, Oklahoma City at Marshall, Findlay at Miami, Alfred Holbrook at Kent State, Cincinnati at Tampa, Fla., Bluffton at Central State, Allegheny at Hiram, Western State Teachers (Kalamazoo, Mich.) at Akron, Hamilton at Oberlin, Wilberforce and Tuskegee at Chicago, and Rio Grande at New River State.

Moose Lodge Trims Detroit

Mike and Sophia Meder, Hipp Set Scoring Pace.

Bowling representatives of the Mansfield Moose lodge broke even in their four matches with the Detroit fraternity at the Meder alleys Saturday night.

Featuring the matches were the scores registered by Mike Meder and Farrell Hipp, who turned out respective scores of 649 and 649 as they paced their team to a 2982 total.

The high scorers fashioned 1008-949-1023 string as they won their match, 1982 to 2418. In the other men's match, Pete Linster, with a 596, won by a 2682 to 2435 margin.

Mansfield lost the women's matches, 1886 to 1734 and 1958 to 1656, with Sophia Meder doing the high scoring with flashy 555, which included a 225 game.

Defeat Capital Eleven

LeMunyon's Long Touchdown Run Features 20-12 Triumph at Stadium.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE TYGERS of Mansfield high returned to the practice field today to open preparations for their invasion of Sandusky Saturday.

Mansfield has not defeated the Blue Streaks on the gridiron in the current series, but the club will "shoot the works" Saturday in an effort to avenge the only loss in its 1937 record. Sandusky scored a 6 to 0 upset.

There's Work to Do.

Coach Russ Murphy's big job this week will be to iron out the team's faulty blocking and strengthen its pass defense, two of the principal faults evident at Stadium field Saturday when the Tygers registered an unimpressive 20 to 12 victory over Columbus East before 2,500 followers.

LeMunyon

Mansfield's touchdown machine worked smoothly part of the time, particularly in the opening half, but bogged down after the intermission every time it moved into Columbus territory.

In the opening half the Tygers reeled off yardage with ease against the Capital City club's spotty defense, but fumbles and penalties proved costly when it looked as though they were going any place.

The Tygers had trouble throughout trying to break up the visiting Tigers effective aerial attack. Columbus attempted only seven forwards, but completed four of them, two resulting in touchdowns.

Jim LeMunyon supplied the spark that led the Tygers to victory. He personally accounted for two touchdowns, one of them on a brilliant 76-yard dash in the opening minute of the game.

Mansfield held the edge in every department but passing. The club clicked off 401 yards to the invaders' 165 in total yards gained and marked up 18 first downs while Columbus was collecting eight.

LeMunyon's spectacular touchdown sprint was one of the finest pieces of broken field running witnessed at Stadium field this year. The dash followed the opening kickoff which Mansfield returned to its own 24. On the first play the speedy halfback slashed off tackle and tore down the sidelines, outrunning the invaders' safety man into pay dirt. Al Schwaner added the point with a perfect placement.

Scores on Sweep.

The Tygers' second marker followed shortly after they received the next kickoff on the 44. Mansfield marched straight down the field with Capt. Rich Nagle knocking off the yards through the Columbus line. And then LeMunyon skirted right end from the six to score. Schwaner again added the point from placement.

Columbus, fighting with its back to the wall and trying desperately to score its first win of the season, came right back with a running attack that resulted in its first touchdown.

Bill Purpura and John Hassey supplied the punch that carried the ball from the Columbus 35 into the end zone. Fast went to Mansfield's nine where it looked as though the Tygers would halt the drive but on fourth down Bob Wigor rifled a short pass to Sanford Soomsky for the score. Purpura's attempted placement was hurried by the Mansfield forward wall.

A 47-yard march gave the Tygers their third and final touchdown in the second frame. The touchdown drive followed a threat which ended on the Columbus 15 when they lost the ball on downs after their passing attack failed to function.

LeMunyon, Nagle and Ike Smith carried the mail from the Columbus 47 to the six and Nagle pounded through center for the score. Nagle's pass to Jack Dugger for the point was incomplete, and Mansfield led, 20 to 6 as the half ended.

Mansfield opened the second half with a drive that started from its own 25, but just when it began to click, Lemunyon fumbled the ball on the visitors' 40.

Mansfield lost another touchdown in the third when a penalty nullified Ike Smith's 34-yard run into the end zone. Shortly after the Tygers again penetrated to Columbus' 30 but again lost the ball on a fumble.

Purpura set the stage for Columbus' final marker in the fourth stanza when he intercepted one of Schwaner's heaves on the Mansfield 40.

Penalty Helps Last.

The Tygers opener another drive from their own 25 and reached Columbus' 47 as the gun ended the game.

Shelby Defends Perfect Defensive Record Against Bucyrus, Galion Engages Norwalk

Bellville Shares District Spotlight With Whippet, Orange Elevens.

MADISON'S defeat by Mt. Vernon reduced the number of undefeated and untied schoolboy football units in this territory to three over the week-end.

Shelby, Galion and Bellville boasts unmarred records as play reaches the half-way mark this week.

Goal Line Uncrossed.

The Whippets have compiled the most brilliant record of any of the neighborhood teams. They extended their splendid defensive record Saturday when they walloped Ashland, 41 to 0.

Shelby, which has not permitted a touchdown this season, is host to Bucyrus Friday night, while Galion, victorious over the Redmen, 49 to 19, entertains Norwalk, a non-conference foe.

Bellville is also scheduled this week, but the Bluejays' foe is not known definitely due to a schedule mixup. Coach Royd Hodge's men defeated Loudonville, 12 to 6, last week for their first Mid-State league triumph.

Other games this week take Mansfield to Sandusky, Ashland to Wooster, Centerburg to Danville, Crestline to Mt. Vernon, Medina to New London and Upper Sandusky to Madison.

The Rams, handed their first defeat by Mt. Vernon by a 12 to 0 count, are expected to find Upper Sandusky troublesome, and Mansfield faces anything but an easy assignment at Sandusky.

Shelby again displayed a championship brand of football Saturday as it walked over Ashland by a 41 to 0 margin. The margin was the widest by which the Whippets ever defeated Ashland in the 29-year rivalry.

Although held scoreless until the final minutes of the first half, the superiority of the Whippets was evident throughout. A partially blocked punt caused by a bad pass from center set the stage for the first Shelby score.

Shelby scored two more in the following minutes before the half to hold a 20 to 0 lead going into the third period.

Never In Ball Game.

Ashland was never in the ball game in the second half as the fancy Whippets tallied two more scores in the third period and one in the fourth.

A fumble on the one-yard line cost the Whippets another touchdown in the second half.

Harold Bliss led the Shelby touchdown parade with two. Baker, George, Stevens and Garner accounted for the other scores, with Terman contributing four points via the placement route. Records follow:

Ohio State Outplays Trojans, But They Pay Off on Scores

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio State's Buckeyes turned their faces from the alluring horizon of national football fame today and decided to concentrate on the more practical ambition of lining up the Big Ten crown.

The latter task, however, promised to be difficult and one fraught with many hardships, the first of which will arise in Evanston, Ill., on Saturday in the personages of Northwestern's Wildcats.

It was almost a sure bet that State would enter the Northwestern contest as the underdog and it was a sure bet that the Wildcats would open against the Bucks with a vicious passing attack.

The reason for the passes comes out of Southern California's 14-to-7 decision over Ohio Saturday in which sharp aerial thrusts stored the game safely in the Trojan warehouse.

Run Potent Factor.

Of course Grenville Lansdell's 84-yard return of a punt for a touchdown shortly after the USC game opened was a potent factor in the final outcome but it was a break of the game liable to come anytime.

If Northwestern's pass defense is as good as was Southern California's, then the Bucks will have to depend on power alone if they expect victory. The Scarlet and Gray, last Saturday, hurled pass after pass, but time and again a fleet USC back would be in the way and nullify aerial scoring attempts.

Ohio's power attempts were fairly successful against the Trojans and onlookers were willing to guess that Coach Francis Schmidt would build them up even stronger for the Wildcat fray.

Ohio outplayed Southern California in the number of first downs and yards gained from rushing as much as Indiana outmatched the Buckeyes in those respects—but as so blithely mentioned after the Hoosier game—they pay off on the final score.

K-B Coals Bow To Huntington

Hall Stars for Semi-Pros as They Drop Third Straight at League Park.

MANSFIELD'S Kallmerten & Baer semi-pro football club ran into another snag in its quest for victory at League park Sunday when it bowed to the touted Huntington, W. Va., team, 13 to 7, before a disappointing crowd.

Although it was the Coals' third straight defeat, Coach Gip Miller had some satisfaction in the performance of Bob Hall, former University of Illinois freshman star. Hall, an excellent punter and ball carrier, should prove valuable to the club in the future.

Kicks Help Coals.

Rushed into the coniest when Huntington, seeking its 18th straight triumph, was knocking at the Mansfield touchdown throne in the opening period, Hall pulled the Coals out of several holes with his brilliant punting. He averaged 42 yards on three kicks, one of them traveling 60 yards.

Huntington struck fast and furious in the second stanza to score both its touchdowns.

The Mansfielders, sporting new gold and black uniforms, finally unleashed their powerful running attack in the last half, but were unable to push over more than one marker. It came late in the final period.

Late in the game, when Huntington was filling the air with forwards, George Hummel snagged one of them and returned it to the visitors' 24. But Mansfield's chances of at least tying the score faded when a penalty set it back to its own 40.

The West Virginia outfit had Mansfield backed deep in its own territory most of the opening half with its deadly passing attack. Huntington drove inside the Coals' 10-yard stripe twice, but the K-B's line set back every thrust.

Unable to gain any yardage on the ground, the winners relied on their aerial game to score their first touchdown. It came midway in the second quarter when Moulton tossed a 23-yard pass to Allen in the end zone. Moulton also passed to J. Halsted for the point.

Mansfield came back with an attack that carried it to Huntington's 15 where Barnett gathered up a fumble and raced 85 yards down the sidelines for his club's second touchdown. Coleman's placement hit the cross bar and bounded back into the playing field.

The Coals, who marked up only one first down in the opening half, broke loose after the intermission and drove to the invaders' 30 before the march was halted when Coleman intercepted a forward.

But Mansfield was not to be denied, for it came right back and marched 80 yards for its lone tally. George Mays, Hall and Powers supplied the power to place the ball on Huntington's eight. And Hall smashed through center for the score. Powers added the point on a plunge.

Intercepts Pass.

Coleman ended any Mansfield hope of another touchdown shortly after when he intercepted another pass on the Mansfield 35.

Hall, Mays, Powers and "Rabbit" Siler were outstanding in the Mansfield backfield. The performance of the Coal's forward wall was a highlight of the game.

Pro Rams End Bears' String

Beat Chicago, 14 to 7, for Second Straight Win.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland's Rams celebrated their first winning streak in two years of national pro football play today and everyone was happy about it except those perennial title favorites, the Chicago Bears. They were the victims of the Rams' second straight victory.

The Rams, who won only one game in their inaugural season last year, surprised the Bears yesterday, 14 to 7. Coming a week after their 21-17 Detroit conquest, the win gave the Rams two in a row after three defeats and accounted for the Bears first setback in four starts.

The eastern division also had its last undefeated record blotted out when the New York Giants rallied through the air in the final period to overcome Washington 10 to 7. The defeat also cost the Redskins undisputed possession of first place, as Brooklyn rode over Pittsburgh 17 to 7 to join Washington with a record of two triumphs, one defeat and a tie.

Why Hospital Insurance? Here's Stanton's Answer

About 85 per cent of all women and 25 per cent of all men are in a hospital or sanitarium for one to four weeks during their life.

One in every 85 families, or 375,000 persons, in 1937 were seriously injured by accident and permanently disabled for life. Many of these were saved from death by good doctor, surgeon and hospital care.

Accident, sickness and disease sends some one a hospital every few moments. These are statistics of record.

The cost of hospitalization varies with the seriousness of the cause and the amount of hospital services required. Operating room, anesthesia, medicine, labratory, x-rays, special nurse are all charges in addition to the cost of room and meals, but it is all a cost of the hospital that the patient must pay, if it is used.

Hospital expenses come generally unexpectedly and often when it is hard to pay, Ralph Stanton, Mansfield insurance broker, points out.

"Few families have in these times reserves enough to pay any sizeable accident or sickness bill," he says.

"The easiest way to meet these expenses is to put away a little money every month in an 'emergency account' and leave it there, but that is easier to say than do," Stanton adds.

"Another and perhaps the best way is to put a small amount regularly into an insurance policy that will pay for sickness and accident bills. Such a policy is a letter of credit to any hospital anywhere.

"One of the old experienced companies, the Massachusetts Casualty company of Boston offers such a policy at a reasonable cost. This policy pays a flat per day amount for hospital or for a nurse or for both combined. This policy, paying for 120 days on any claim, insures 90 per cent of all hospital requirements a person will have."

Stanton, who has offices in the Walpark building, is general agent for the company.

Offers Complete Photostat and Blue Print Service

When it comes to blue prints the Richland Blue Print Service, 115 Bird building, has all the answers.

The shop operates a complete reproduction service for engineering and drafting room needs. This includes the making of blue prints, the copy of architest's working plans; black and white direct process prints; Van Dyke negatives and blue line prints.

The services of Richland Blue Print are not limited to this field, however. It also maintains a modern photostat service which reproduces quickly and economically any subject without the aid of a negative.

There are hundreds of uses for photostate prints and one of the most important is that it is recognized by the courts as legal copy in place of the original. As a result, it is a common practice in business and government to have photostat copies made of important papers and documents.

In addition, Richland Blue Print carries a complete line of engineering and drafting room supplies, such as tracing paper and tracing cloth, drafting instrument, drawing sets, drafting room furniture and various other products needed in these fields.

New Mansfield Mattress Wins Speedy Response

New principles of comfort which have been built into the Triple Cushion innerspring mattress, made by the Balyeat Manufacturing company, have won an immediate response for this product throughout the state.

As a result, operations in this department of the company, are moving ahead at practically capacity to meet the demands for the new mattress.

Manufacture of the Triple Cushion, available at furniture stores throughout the state, got under way several months ago. The Triple Cushion offers all the advantages of a tuftless mattress with none of the disadvantages.

The tuftless feature permits a full, free action of every coil spring. No coil is depressed by tufts to harden it and hamper its buoyancy.

The special method of construction prevents any "pull" across the mattress by the weight or movement of one person on one side of the mattress.

SENT TO PRISON IN TIRE THEFTS

One Gets Pen Term for Taking Stolen Goods, Other Given Workhouse Sentence.

Two members of a "ring" which allegedly stole automobile tires from freight cars and sold them to "agents" in Mansfield pleaded guilty to grand jury indictments before Judge C. H. Huston Saturday and were given penitentiary and workhouse terms. A third man was placed on probation.

Charles Brooks, Mansfield, colored, was sentenced to one to seven years in the Ohio penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to indictment for receiving stolen property. Brooks had previously pleaded innocent to the indictment.

Clayton Baldwin, colored, was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in the Columbus workhouse when he admitted taking tires from freight cars. He was charged with larceny.

Love Jacobs, colored, who was indicted for burglary, pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for three years by Judge Huston. Jacobs will be required to report regularly to Harry Crouse, county probation officer.

CHARITY REWARD

Springfield Church Has Novel Idea as Fund Raiser.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—(INS)—Contribute a gift to the Christ Church cathedral and get your name placed in a casket.

In celebration of the cathedral's centennial fund, all persons contributing gifts to the church will have their names placed in a special casket, which will be hermetically sealed. The casket will be addressed to the dean of the cathedral who is in office in 2038, with a request the names be read at the bicentennial.

U. S. STANDS 4TH

California and Florida Boost World's Orange Output.

BERKELEY, Cal.—(UP)—Out of a total world production of 200,000,000 boxes of oranges annually, the United States is now producing slightly more than one-fourth of this amount, a survey of the orange industry by the University reveals.

Oranges, it is pointed out, are produced on all five of the continents but because of climatic requirements, their growth is restricted to the tropical, semi-tropical and sub-tropical countries.

Approximately 97 per cent of the more than 50,000,000 boxes produced annually in the United States are from California and Florida, the former producing 62 per cent of the total and the latter 35 per cent. Texas, Arizona, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi are other orange producing states.

In California, oranges are produced on approximately 46,000 farms, comprising 238,000 acres of orange trees in more than 30 counties.

HAS BABY A NASTY COLD?

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do
Rub baby's back, chest, and throat with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him deep into bed. What a comfort to know that VapoRub goes to work right away to relieve the misery of his cold without "dosing"—without risk of stomach upsets. And what a comfort to know that long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub will still be working—two ways at once—direct through the skin like a poultice, and direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. You'll find that often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

STOCK MARKET ENCOURAGED BY BUSINESS NEWS

Continues Upward Climb Until End of Second Hour When Selling Slackens Pace.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—After climbing nine out of ten session, the stock market hesitated today and renewed profit taking put brakes on the advance.

The list got off to a speedy start, with the ticker tape behind for a brief interval. Activity dwindled later and, near the second hour, quotations were mixed

Declines running to a point or so were posted for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler and General Motors. Among small gainers were du Pont, Philip Morris, Johns-Manville, Douglas Aircraft and Great Northern.

Business news was still encouraging from a market standpoint, but the length of the upturn in stocks, brokers said, caused many traders to cash in on the theory a technical "correction" was in the offing.

Bonds improved and commodities were uneven. Foreign Securities markets were irregular.

Cheered By Review.

The review said that gains in automotive requirements were responsible for a large part of the recent upturn in steel shipments, although substantial support was being provided by building work and miscellaneous users.

"Operations of some farm equipment manufacturers," it was added, "are headed upward after a quiet summer, particularly in the tractor division, and will help to bolster steel demand this quarter."

Holders of building company shares noted preliminary reports from this field indicating September residential construction contracts were below the high August level but about 20 per cent above the corresponding 1937 months.

LABOR HEARING IN SECOND WEEK

Union's Testimony Expected to Be Completed Today Before NLRB Examiner.

Testimony of witnesses for Local 750 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' union was expected to be completed today in the hearing of unfair labor practices against the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company, Mansfield.

As the hearing before the National Labor Relations board examiner at the courthouse went into the second week, Atty. Max W. Johnstone, counsel for the NLRB, said he planned to call Otto Lommatzsch, secretary of Local 705, back to the stand to testify regarding the number of members in the union. On the stand last week, Lommatzsch testified that the union had a majority membership in the plant.

More than 30 officials, foremen and workers at the Ideal plant will be called to the stand this week to testify for the defendant firm, Thomas F. Veach, attorney for the company, said today. He predicted the hearing would continue all week.

Testimony is being heard by Webster Powell, examiner for the labor board.

Local 705 of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' union, a CIO affiliate, which brought charges against the Ideal company, seeks certification as the sole bargaining agency on labor questions at the Mansfield plant.

A lot on Fifth avenue was purchased by John Sferro for $65. The county held a $12 judgment against Walter Sirian, owner of the lot.

Can Hair Grow On a Bald Head?

SENT FREE TO ALL WHO WRITE

No, Says Traditional Opinion, Yes Say Thousands Who Have Made This Three Day Test.

Thousands of people, wholly or partially bald or whose hair is thinning rapidly, having tried various tonics and treatments without benefit, believe their situation beyond help. Yet their case may not be hopeless. In many cases hair roots, long thought dead, are merely dormant, can be aroused to renewed activity, grow hair again, thick and luxuriant as ever. Results in this respect that seem utterly amazing have been produced over and over again in literally thousands of apparently hopeless cases by Frederick Godfrey, a young English research worker in Hair and Scalp conditions. Sworn statements and actual photographs clearly prove the success of his process. Mr. Godfrey makes no claims, offers no promises in any individual case but offers to send Free and without obligation, a Test Package and full particulars of his process to all who write. You may, if you wish, enclose ten cents, to cover postage and packing. Easily used at home and inexpensive. Mr. Godfrey's process has already met with wide acceptance since its introduction to this country. Send your request to Frederick Godfrey Co., Dept. 49, Adams, New York. Write him today.

SOVIETS CALL LINDY 'LIAR'

Charge Flier Gave European Powers 'Excuse' to Give Hitler His Demands.

Classed as 'Has Been.'

The statement characterized Lindbergh as a "has been" among aviators, who recently took advantage of Soviet hospitality toward Americans by barging into Moscow without an invitation.

The statement referred to alleged assertions in London by the American aviator to the effect that the Soviet air fleet was weak and disorganized.

"On what basis does he draw such a conclusion? Only Allah knows.

"Having uttered such a colossal lie, Lindbergh was inwardly amazed at himself and decided to try another.

"His second declaration exceeded his first. He said that during his stay in Moscow he was offered the job of chief of Soviet civil aviation.

"Lindbergh probably has not read Gogol and doesn't know the name of Glestakoff. (Glestakoff was a character in Gogol's play, "Revizor." He was always boasting and lying.)

"Lindbergh in the role of chief of aviation!' Among us pilots such a wild lie could only cause laughter. Such so-called pilots, and even former pilots, will not be permitted to come within cannon shot of our leadership!

'Another Unbridled Lie.'

"Another unbridled lie followed. Lindbergh declared the Soviet air fleet is without leadership and is in a chaotic condition.

"Soviet aviation holds a majority of world records. The Soviet Union has hundreds and thousands of perfect pilots who not only know how to fly but at any time could be perfect organizers and leaders."

Lindbergh, the statement said, "plays the role of stupid liar, lackey and flatterer of German Fascists and their English aristocratic protectors. . . . He had an order from English reactionary circles to prove the weakness of Soviet aviation and give Chamberlain an argument for capitulation at Munich in connection with Czechoslovakia.

"The bribed liar, Lindbergh, fulfilled the order of his masters. That explains everything."

Hitler Tells World He'll Arm Frontiers.

BERLIN—(INS)—Chancellor Hitler went on record with a flat warning to Europe's democracies today that Germany's new western fortifications will be enlarged and rushed to completion.

At the same time, he declared he would soon reduce the reich's gigantic mobilized war machine to normal strength.

Making it clear, in a militant speech at Saarbruecken, that he distrusted Britain and France because their governments might be replaced by regimes hostile to the Reich, Hitler declared the Siegfried line paralleling France's Maginot line will be built up so that "no power in the world can smash this wall."

Shortly after Hitler made his declaration, Konrad Henlein, Reich commissioner for the newly acquired Sudetenland, ordered immediate dissolution of the Sudeten "free corps."

This order was issued while German troops occupied the fifth Sudeten zone awarded to the Reich by the international commission in Berlin. Occupation of the fifth zone is to be completed by tonight.

The question whether additional "doubtful" Sudeten districts will decide their allegiance to Czechoslovakia or Germany by plebiscite will be determined by the commission shortly.

A new indication of Czech resistence to the German occupation was contained in a dispatch to the German official News from Troppau, which stated two Sudeten Germans were shot and killed by Czech soldiers at Gilschwitz, south of Troppau, a few hours before German troops marched into the town.

The Sudeten victims were described as a local German leader named Fenzel and his assistant, Herr Kuransk. Accompanied by three others, they were driving from Troppau to Gilschwitz on Saturday to hand over their district to the German forces.

German Troops End Occupation Trek.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN SUDETENLAND — (AP) — The German army of occupation today halted its advance into Czechoslovakia, having occupied all the territory agreed upon by international negotiation.

With the occupation of the so-called fifth zone completed, no further steps were expected until authorized by the international commission sitting in Berlin.

The territory already occupied includes between 80 and 90 per cent of that where live the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

(The occupation was accomplisher with very little disorder. The official German news agency, DNB, reported yesterday, however, that two Sudeten Germans were shot and killed by Czechoslovak soldiers at Troppau a few hours before German troops entered that city. DNB also said a 14-year-old boy was shot to death at Schillerdorf as Czechoslovak forces left.

(Polish troops continued to occupy territory ceded to Poland. Yesterday they moved into Bohumin, important railroad junction town, which was scheduled to be occupied Oct. 11. Warsaw foreign office officials said Czechoslovakia had asked them to advance the date to avert disorders in the adjoining territory.

(Dispatches from Komarom, on the Czechoslovak-Hungarian frontier, said Czechoslovakia had agreed to Hungarian occupation of two border towns as an initial step in settling Budapest's territorial claims. Satoraljaujhely is to be occupied within 24 hours and Ipolysag within 36 hours.)

FORD WINS IN NLRB APPEAL

Supreme Court Grants Auto Firm's Plea for Review.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The Ford Motor company today won its appeal to the supreme court for review of a sixth circuit court decision permitting the National Labor Relations board to reopen the "unfair labor practices" case against the company.

The Ford company, which contended that the board sought to withdraw the case to escape a possible holding that its first order was invalid, insisted that the matter had passed out of the board's hands. The issue was assigned for argument Nov. 7.

EXPECT BARBARA IN U. S. TODAY TO START CITIZENSHIP QUEST

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — The Countess Barbara Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, will return to her native country today when the French liner Normandie docks here at 5:30 p. m., those close to the countess said, according to an exclusive story in the Journal-American.

The story added:

Her marriage to the titled Danish nobleman, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, having crashed in a welter of charges this summer, the heiress to $40,000,000 of the Woolworth five-and-ten-cent store fortune, is believed to be returning home in an effort to regain her American citizenship, which she renounced last December.

The countess was believed to be trying to slip into the United States unobserved, as her name was not listed on the ship's manifest, and high officers of the Normandie denied she was aboard.

Belief that she is a passenger was strengthened by the disclosure that her stepmother, Mrs. Franklyn L. Hutton, and her two cousins, James and Woolworth Donahue, are on the ship.

Her father, Franklyn L. Hutton, who arrived from Europe Saturday on the liner Manhattan, refused to confirm or deny the report that "Babs" was on the Normandie.

Should she be granted a divorce from the count and marry an American citizen she would become eligible for citizenship in three years, but should she remain the wife of the Danish nobleman, she would have to wait five years.

Forum Hears How Propaganda Builds Up War Hysteria

A discussion of the present European situation was given by William Russell, managing engineer of the Westinghouse at a meeting of the Community Christian Youth Forum last evening at the First Congregational church.

Russell pointed out how the influence of propaganda asserts itself in developing war hysteria.

"The change from national sanity to national insanity is a definitely defined process in which the propagandists play the important part," Russell said.

The worship service was in charge of Henry Sanford, chairman of the Forum.

Judge Julius Kovachy of the Cleveland Municipal court will be guest speaker at next week's meeting at the First Presbyterian church. Music will be furnished by the Senior high school band and sound motion pictures of the band and various Mansfield scenes will be shown by Harry Delaney, projectionist.

MOONEY LOSES IN HIGH COURT

Supreme Tribunal Turns Down Appeal for Review of Bombing Conviction.

fused to grant Mooney's plea on three occasions.

Charge Perjured Evidence.

In appealing to the court, Mooney contended that he was convicted on perjured evidence. He maintained that his constitutional rights were invaded both because he was thus convicted and because the state Supreme court held that he could not be granted a new trial because the alleged perjured evidence was discovered too late.

Mooney's friends now are expected to push their fight in congress for passage of a resolution calling upon Gov. Frank F. Merriam of California for pardon.

A resolution to this effect, based upon the ground that Mooney was the victim of a "frame-up" because of his labor activities in San Francisco, has been approved by a house judiciary subcommittee.

Governor Only Hope for Mrs. Hahn.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Refusal of the United States supreme court to review the conviction of Anna Marie Hahn leaves but one avenue —possible commutation by the governor—for the Cincinnati woman to escape death in the electric chair for the poison murder of Jacob Wagner.

Mrs. Hahn has been in a death cell at Ohio penitentiary since Dec. 1, 1937. Small, self-composed and sturdily-constructed, she is now 32 years old.

She was convicted Nov. 6 by a Cincinnati common pleas court jury of 11 women and one man—the most feminine-dominated jury in the memory of Ohio's oldest students of jurisprudence.

The specific charge against her was the murder of Wagner, 78-year-old Cincinnati gardener, with whom she had been friendly. Wagner died June 3, 1937.

At her trial, the state introduced evidence of the deaths of three other old men, all acquaintances of the blond Bavarian.

These were Albert J. Palmer, 72, retired railway watchman who died March 26; George Gsellman, 67, who died in his Cincinnati attic room July 6; and George Obendoerfer, also 67, a Cincinnati cobbler who died in Colorado Springs, Colo., four days after Mrs. Hahn accompanied him on a trip to the mountain resort city.

All the old men were of German origin, living alone on modest savings.

The Ohio district appellate court held that introduction of the other cases was relevant and that Mrs. Hahn was tried fairly. This decision was upheld by the Ohio supreme court, which refused a review on the grounds that no debatable constitutional question was involved.

Twenty-four hours before Mrs. Hahn was scheduled to die, her attorneys obtained on May 3 leave to appeal to the United States supreme court. This automatically stayed the execution until the appeal could be heard—a delay until today because the highest court was just starting on its annual summer recess.

A phlegmatic prisoner, Mrs. Hahn has spent her 10 months and more in the Ohio prison quietly engaged in needlecraft.

Last May 2, with permission of prison officials, she gave a "mass interview" to the press, which was attended by several score of reporters. White-faced but composed, she repeated her plea of innocence, but with spirit added, "I wouldn't be afraid to die."

Aside from that one appearance, she has remained secluded in her special cell in death row, attended by two matrons (she is the only woman prisoner in the penitentiary), and visited occasionally by her counsel and her son, Oscar Hahn, now nearly 13. Oscar lives with relatives in Cincinnati.

Philip Hahn, the woman's husband, is a Cincinnati telegrapher, who has remained in the background since the case first developed.

KEEP EYE ON NORTHERN SKY

Aurora Borealis Scheduled to Do Its Stuff This Week.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Look for "northern lights," the Aurora Borealis, to show up any clear night this week.

This advice was issued today by Dr. Clyde Fisher, astronomer, American Museum of Natural Science. It is based on the announcement, Saturday, from Mt. Wilson, Calif., that astronomers are observing the largest sunspot of the century.

The spot about 75,000 miles long and 30,000 wide, actually a collection of smaller spots, it due to pass the meridian, that is appear on the center of the sun, this week.

FORESEE NAZIS WARNING START OF ARMS RACE

Britain Expected to Speed Up Munitions as Result of Hitler's Speech.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A new speed up in the pace of British armament was forecast today as the result of a speech by Adolf Hitler announcing that Germany, despite the recent Munich agreement, must "at all hours be ready to resist."

There seemed some reluctance in official quarters to comment on the speech, which had been widely pre-announced as one in which German-French friendship would be emphasized.

Instead of friendship, however, Hitler had emphasized that Germany had obtained her post-war victories by virtue of her might and must continue to arm herself.

Further, the fact that he denounced three outstanding British conservatives as potential enemies of Germany added interest to the possible trend of British leadership in months to come.

Hitler denounced Winston Churchill, fiery leader of the "stop Hitler" section of the conservative party; Anthony Eden, who resigned as foreign secretary because of the government's policy of conciliating the continental dictators, and Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned as first lord of the admiralty last week because the Munich agreement "stuck in his throat."

Churchill to Reply.

Churchill, regarded by many people as the greatest British orator of his time, said at first today he would reply to Hitler tonight in a speech to be broadcast to the United States. Later, however, the British broadcasting company said at Churchill's request the broadcast had been postponed for a few days.

Long in opposition to the coalition government, Churchill has foretold in his speeches every development in major European policy during the last few years. He demands that the country be armed to the hilt. He is 63 but as much of a power in British politics as he was 20 years ago and there are many who could not be surprised if, by some strange turn of political fortune, he became prime minister on a "stop Hitler" program.

Newspapers of every party affiliation urged today, in comment on Hitler's speech, that the government speed up its armament program as the result of the German leader's "warning."

The government, on the constructive side, started the groundwork in co-operation with France for eventual mediation in the Spanish civil war.

It was understood that the government hoped that after all foreign troops had been withdrawn from Spain—and provided that they were withdrawn in full—there might be a joint effort by Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy to arrange an armistice.

AUSTRIAN RIOTS SPUR RELIGION

Catholics Predict Attacks Against Church Serve to Create New Sentiment.

new outbreak against the Roman Catholic church among their followers. But there was some anxiety lest an unforeseen incident cause new violence.

Thousands of defiant young Nazis milled about the cathedral neighborhood yesterday. After last night's services, 100 boys in Hitler youth uniform, headed by flag bearers and a drum corps, marched past the cathedral singing marching songs. Later, youths in civilian clothes assembled near the cardinal's palace, shouting:

"To dachau! To dachau!"

Dachau is the great German concentration camp.

Police were watchful. They kept the crowds moving and arrested one man who shouted:

"Innitzer is a swine!"

Cardinal Innitzer remained under guard in his palace. An official spokesman explained that he was not under "protective" or any other sort of custody by the Nazis—that the guards of crack black uniformed "SS" bodyguards in and about the palace were solely to protect him and to preserve order. That the cardinal was not under any form of detention or in any sort of custody was substantiated, despite earlier reports, by a placard posted at the main entrance to the cathedral, announcing that he would speak Thursday at the last of a series of five Bible study hours inaugurated yesterday.

Cardinal Innitzer celebrated mass at the cathedral yesterday. His attendance confirmed the statement of spokesmen that he was not personally injured in Saturday night's riot. The mass was one of the most poignant in the cardinal's long career. Many members of the congregation wept and their sobs were audible. One priest was so overcome by the service that he became faint, and had to be escorted out of the cathedral. Many people tried to approach the cardinal and kiss his hands and robes as he made his way from the sacristy to the altar and back again. The SS guards prevented them from touching him.

The condition of Father Johann Krajanik, 60, who suffered two broken legs when Nazis threw him from a window of his home during Saturday night's riot was reported today to be serious and possibly critical.

The home for the priests adjoins the cathedral. A section of the Saturday night mob forced the door of the home with hatchets, invaded Father Krajanik's rooms and hurled him into a courtyard.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1938.

Some boys learn well from books—others do better at a work bench.

If prosperity is still "just around the corner" it has certainly had a long wait in the same spot.

And then again, this country was taken from the Indians—who were quite well satisfied with conditions as they were.

Speak Well of Home Town.

WHEN a person is heard to "knock" the town or city in which he lives, reflection is more on that individual than on the community of which he speaks in a derogatory way.

A town or city is little more than a large family, with some things that are good and some that are bad. While there is justification for constructive criticism among members of the group there is no excuse for constant fault-finding and complaint about ways in which things are done or left undone.

The New York state conference of mayors recently issued a bulletin in which appeared the following:

> My town is the place where my home is founded; where my business is situated and where my vote is cast; where my children are educated; where my neighbors dwell, and where my life is chiefly lived. It is the home spot for me.
>
> My town has the right to my civic loyalty. It supports me and I should support it. My town wants my citizenship, not my partisanship; my friendliness, not my dissension; my sympathy, not my criticism; my intelligence, not my indifference. My town supplies me with protection, trade, friends, education, schools, churches, and the right to free moral citizenship.
>
> It has some things that are better than others; the best things I should seek to make better, the worst things I should help to suppress. Take it all-in-all, it is my town, and it is entitled to the best there is in me.

This estimate of a "home town" reflects the views of many people. Any city such as Mansfield has vast opportunity for improvement, but there are also many things about it that are admirable. A city gains nothing by getting bigger, unless it also becomes better. Look for the good things in Mansfield to tell about—and look for the bad ones to help eliminate.

National Fire Prevention Week.

THIS WEEK is being nationally observed as Fire Prevention week, an annual event since it was first proclaimed by President Wilson more than twenty years ago.

Vivid figures illustrate the importance of constant effort toward prevention of fires, a large percentage of which are caused by carelessness or ignorance.

Each year fire destroys about $300,000,000 worth of property directly, while the indirect loss brings the total to the billion-dollar mark. But even worse, fire brings horrible death to approximately 10,000 people each year.

While there is advantage in the concentration of public thought on this subject during Fire Prevention week, the really important thing is for people to learn that they must be constantly on guard against the little acts of carelessness or thoughtlessness that so frequently start a destructive fire.

Defective heating plants or electric wiring, accumulations of rubbish in basements and attics, carelessly thrown cigaret stubs—many things constitute potential fire hazards which should not be overlooked.

'Spending' vs. 'Conserving.'

YOU can't express the cost of life insurance merely in terms of dollars and cents.

A dollar is a thing of flexible value. It may mean little to you at the height of your earning power, when money "comes easy." It may mean a great deal when you pass your peak of efficiency, and must make plans for retiring.

It is those "easy" dollars which go to buy insurance—and to provide hard-to-get dollars in old age, sickness or adversity. And the fact that eight out of ten men on reaching old age become dependent for existence on charity or the bounty of friends or relatives, shows how vital such preparation for the future is.

You don't "spend" money when you buy life insurance. You save and conserve it. And you'll get it all back and more when you need it most.

Long-Range Optimism.

A NEWSPAPER READER, who wrote to a columnist about the Czechoslovak crisis, seems to express the ultimate in optimism.

"Chamberlain is maneuvering the aggressors into hot water slowly enough for them to realize its temperature, which is gradually increasing.

"Hitler and Mussolini have tried to wear down the resistance of the democracies and jangle their nerves; but Chamberlain has not been susceptible. He is now wearing down Hitler's resistance."

Perhaps the idea is that if you give a man a bigger empire than he can handle or a bigger success than his temperament can stand, both he and his empire will crack. However, it seems a peculiarly roundabout and hazardous way to stop a ruthless dictator.

College Grads' Children.

THE science department of Brown university has discovered that young women who lead their classes in intelligence marry just as young and have just as many children as their less intellectual classmates.

A detailed study of 108 girls from the class of 1927 of the Women's college of Brown university found that the fifty-four scoring highest on intelligence tests had thirty-six children. The same number in the less intelligent group had thirty-seven. In an earlier study it was found that the most intelligent college men had more children than the least intelligent.

These facts mean little, however, since both college women and college men have fewer children than necessary to replace themselves in future generations. The preponderance of births still lies in the less privileged population groups.

A sociologist says: "Women must learn to speak for themselves"—but try to enforce such a limit.

The juvenile delinquency problem is complicated by the adult delinquency problem.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — It was about noon of a late day in May, just time for the staff of the U. S. legation in Managua, Nicaragua, to toss off a frosty lime fizz and put on fresh linens before lunch. Suddenly a brust of rifle fire cut loose over near the Campo de Marte.

In 1922 a brust of rifle fire from over in that section of town meant a revolution and it was 1922 when this firing began, and if you ask the Marines that is a hot time to start a revolution in a banana republic.

United States Minister Ramer at Managua sent Major John Marston, commanding the Marine guard, to the scene of battle. The officer found Generals Arsenio Cruz and Salvador Castrillo, leading a dissatisfied wing of the conservative party, had already seized the government's Fort Loma and were trying to take over Campo de Marte.

The two generals had started out with a hundred men but the sound of bullets swelled their ranks to 200, which was a fair rebellion as measured by Caribbean standards.

* * *

Now It Can Be Told—

FOR Minister Ramer, quick action was the word. Just how quick is disclosed for the first tume now, 16 years later, in a publication by the state department of its once secret files.

Acting under Ramer's direction, Major Marston told General Cruz that "any firing upon the American camp or the city of Managua would result in immediate intervention of American forces to preserve order and protect American interests."

Those are drastic words for the representative of one American republic to say to people of another independent republic, but in those days the U. S. was backing up its policy with bayonets. Ramer told the rebel general that 10,000 more Marines were within a few days call. The United States, he said, "will not permit this revolution in Nicaragua."

General Cruz tried to explain that he would be careful not to shoot at American interests, but Ramer insisted it would be impossible for him to fire on the city without jeopardizing American life and property.

The revolution folded, right then and there. A deal was negotiated allowing all the civilian rebels to go free and limiting punishment of military rebels to 30 days in jail.

* * *

Okay and Congrats!

BUT late that night, after the shooting was over, Minister Ramer became uneasy. He recognized that he was out on a limb in taking such a high-handed stand. Just before midnight he telegraphed Secretary of State Hughes (he's Chief Justice now) explaining the whole situation. "The legation acted drastically in this crisis," he said, "and I am eager to secure the department's approval."

Secretary Hughes telegraphed back: "Your action is approved and the department desires to commend the prompt and capable manner in which you handled the situation."

But in time the department began to worry. An embarrassing precedent had been set. A supposedly neutral U. S. minister had mixed in a local political shakeup that might have loosed a bag of international hornets.

So, on August 26, two months after the affair at Campo de Marte, William Phillips, now ambassador to Italy, but then acting secretary of state, sent a studied cable to Ramer saying:

"The legation should not permit the legation guard to intervene by force in local political affairs except where such action is unavoidable in self protection."

And thus precedent was restored.

The U. S. since has pulled the marines out of Nicaragua so it can't happen again.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"As Cool as a Cucumber"

How cool is a cucumber?

Centigrade or Fahrenheit, it registers not nearly so much frigidity as the expression connotes, in the way of self-possession.

The allusion, possibly, in the first instance is to the fresh, verdant appearance of the cucumber shoots and fruit on a hot day; perhaps to iced pickled slices of the fruit (or is it a vegetable?' itself.

Food for thought as to the depth of the meaning of the simile in the mind of its author is furnished in its earliest recorded usage.

It is in a poem by Gay, published in 1732, in the line:

"... cool as a cucumber, could see the rest of womankind."

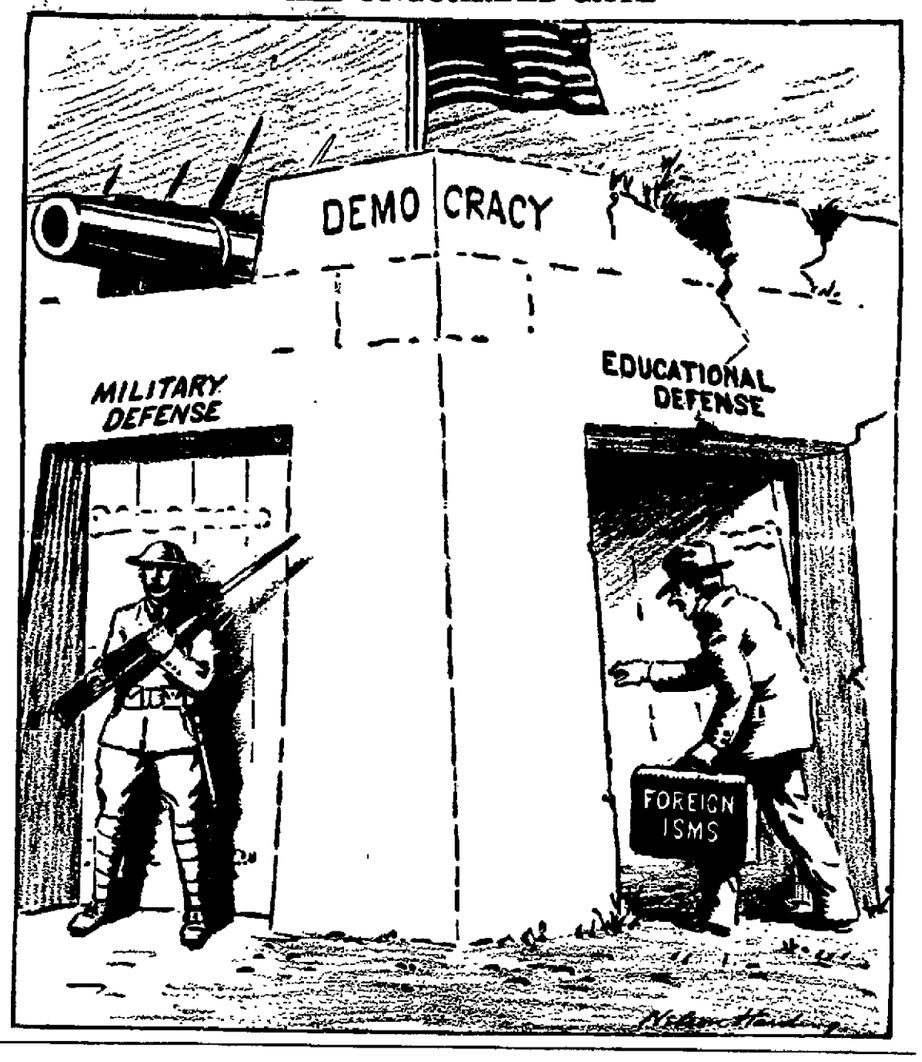
When Home Means Most.

"You see," she said, "just brick and stone,
You see soft shaded lights:
These things are dreams come true, for these
I worked long days and nights.

"Each single thing in this bright home
Stands here a monument
To sacrifice, to pennies saved
For this: but the content.

"That its achievement now has brought
Enhances each loved thing.
And here, because of this, is joy
Beyond word's power to sing."

THE UNGUARDED GATE



Another Peace Conference Sought

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Proposals by Senators James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, and Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, that President Roosevelt call an international conference in Washington to settle world frictions permanently, certainly will not meet with unanimous congressional approval when the law-makers meet next.

The President undoubtedly can, and maybe he will call such a conference regardless of congressional wishes. If the conference arrives at an agreement he can't make the United States a party to it without the Senate's indorsement. That is to say, after the Chief Executive has done his part toward the framing of a treaty which suits him, it still remains for the senatorial body to o. k. it before it becomes effective as to this country. However, the White House can negotiate preliminarily to its heart's content; it has to have no one's permission to go that far.

True, plenty of our solons object even to negotiations. Their reasoning is that negotiations alone, despite possible subsequent senatorial rejection of the terms tentatively arrived at, embarrassingly semi-commit us to the senatorially rejected policies.

Illustratively, the senate turned down the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations plan, but to this day they bother us, because President Wilson had a hand in them 20 years ago.

All the same, if President Roosevelt sees fit to call a conference, there can be no stopping him.

How Many Isolationists?

Just how many of our public men are out-and-out opposed to the slightest American participation in old world discussions is problematic. Since the overseas strain became acute congress has been in recess, and their spokesmanship has been scattering.

We've heard from Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who doesn't want to meddle in foreign affairs with a 10-foot pole, on the ground that, however sincerely we intend to do so in peace's cause, war is what it is pretty sure to lead us into. And we've heard from Senators Lewis and Burke, who believe this to be a good time to risk meddling.

Roughly speaking, I'd guess that old timers, like Senator Borah, are pessimistic, because they have an acute recollection of what our last meddling got us into.

On the oposite hand, some of our juniors, like Senator Burke, are more hopeful, not having had so much experience.

In general I'd surmise that the pro-interference crowd in the next congress will be proportionately stronger than just after the last World war, because the oldsters, who realize how we were flimflammed that time, are greatly thinned out, and the inexperienced youngsters are correspondingly more numerous. Such few oldsters as Senator Borah are left, but Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and his following are gone. And the inexperienced young optimists' "bloc" is more formidable.

Still, we'll know better when the next congress convenes.

Uncle Sam Always Gypped.

It is of record that Uncle Sam invariably has been gypped in international conferences.

We have had great statesmen, domestically speaking, wonderful businessmen, marvelous promoters of industry, excellent generals, labor leaders par excellence, grand thinkers in many lines—but our diplomancy has been awful.

Every time our amateur diplomats have come into competition with the rest of the world's professional diplomats—oh mercy!

The rule may not hold so good just now.

President Roosevelt is a pretty good inernationalist. Secretary of State Cordell Hull is a very great one—politically and economically. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles is the equal of any European specialist. The rank and file of our staff, however, can't be created in a hurry. Our Moleys and "Tommy-the-Corks" aren't very dependable.

Secretaries of State Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson botched their jobs. They promoted international conferences. It's hard not to be suspicious, from an American standpoint, of any international conference that we participate in.

Listen, World!

You Make Your Own Luck.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU make your own luck; build your own breaks. Luck isn't a happy accident, the mysterious perquisite of some fortunate folk. We aren't "born" lucky or unlucky.

Luck is the logical consequence of definite action and anyone who will work for good luck can have it. Indeed, there is no way to avoid it! You are building your luck, one way or another, and no power on earth can save you from the result of your own building.

Luck happens because we make it happen. We make it happen by looking for it, expecting it. We all face the same mass of circumstances. But no two people see the same things in that mass.

Take, for example, three men entering a country village. A carpenter, a politician, an artist. All three see the same scene, the same people—but each one finds that which interests him personally. The carpenter finds BUILDING in that scene; the politician finds VOTES; the artist finds COLOR and FORM. So each one of us finds what he expects in life.

Life is as we take it. Fate is what we make it. No man can dictate what will happen TO him, but each man can, to an increasing degree, dictate what will happen IN him. Each man can decide what he will look for in life. And how he will interpret it after he finds it.

We all see the same scene, but no two interpret it alike. One man sees reason for hope, another excuse for despair. One sees the challenge of a great adventure, another, the mockery of certain failure.

Each man finds that answer which best suits his own optimism or cynicism, eagerness, laziness, conceit or humility, courage or cowardice, gentleness or brutality, stupidity or understanding. Each man finds what he seeks—AND OUT OF THAT FINDING BUILDS HIS LUCK.

* * *

YOU get what you expect. But "expecting" means more than sitting pretty, playing safe, muttering tricky pharases and smiling.

You do not make your luck or break it, in one moment, with one act, by one decision. You are always making it, always breaking it. You are making today the luck which will be yours ten years hence. Every decision you make affects your luck. There are no "unimportant" acts or decisions—they are all important, tremendously important. Everything you wish, say or do—everything you express, avoid or duck—leaves its mark on your mind, its deposit within your spirit. And through those marks, out of those deposits, YOU BUILD YOUR LUCK.

"Are there lucky people—unlucky people?" Indeed, there are! If you are studying engineering, or medicine, or religion, or dressmaking, you will stumble across problems relating to your specialty on every hand, won't you?

And by the same token, if you are concentrating on opportunity, you will find opportunity on every hand—or if you are consumed with a grudge, you will find fresh fuel for your fire on every hand.

Good luck draws good luck; bad luck draws bad. "ASK, AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN YOU; SEEK, AND YE SHALL FIND; KNOCK, AND IT SHALL BE OPENED UNTO YOU."

Seek what? That's up to you!

Differences In Drivers.

Those two Englishmen, John Cobb and Capt. George E. T. Eyston, who are whizzing over the Bonneville salt flats out in Utah breaking each other's world speed records—shucks. They're not reckless.

All they do is guide racing cars weighing about seven tons down a straight stretch at a speed which at last reports had reached better than 357 miles an hour.

They've spent years getting ready to do it, their machines are in perfect condition, and they even have a streak on the straightaway to guide them.

They put on new tires every time they go for a spin, mechanics check over every detail of the racers—in short, everything's in their favor.

For pure, unadulterated darned fool recklessness give us Joe Doakes who weaves through a busy street at a speed of 40 miles an hour with no brakes to speak of, in an old crate that Messrs. Cobb and Eyston wouldn't ride in on a bet. They wouldn't be that reckless.—Canton Repository.

Health Advice

Little Known About the Mind.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE of the most interesting matters confronting the medical profession is the study of the problems of human behaviorism and their effect upon society.

Very little is actually known about the brain and its workings. We know that certain parts of it have to do with voluntary acts such as walking, talking, eating, etc., but the major portion of it remains a great mystery. We speak rather glibly about "emotional centers," but do not know where they are situated or if they actually exist. If a human brain is examined after death it cannot be determined if that person during life possessed an unusual intelligence or was just average. It cannot be determined if the person was highly emotional or very sober and serious-minded.

It remains for future generations to disclose, if they can, why nature turns out of its mold a Webster, a Shakespeare, a Napoleon or a Charlie Chaplin. It remains for them to disclose just how such brains differ from the average.

While so little is actually known about the construction and workings of the human brain, the situation is far from hopeless because a great deal is actually known about behaviorism and many of the motives which activate it.

It is difficult or impossible to explain why individuals in a family choose to become farmers, lawyers, doctors or ministers. Furthermore, it is not easy to explain why certain ones are successful and others are not. It may be advanced that some are just indolent by choice; some achieve success by accident; others simply have hard luck; yet there may be something more behind the scenes that makes for success or failure.

Elements Insure Success.

Possibly the eminently successful are the unwitting recipients of more complete germ plasma, and endowed from the start with the elements that insure success. Possibly it is a matter of environment or chance contacts or mental impressions during the adolescent years.

Whatever the reason, it is trite to say that the greatest difference does develop with mature years, and it may be that this is beneficial to society. Certainly it is evident that a great diversity in occupations and tastes is necessary to build and maintain society.

At times it seems that the world becomes a bit top heavy with certain classes, just as at present with our large group of politicians and government employes, but this is merely a symptom of a distorted mental balance and will pass. There also seems to be a growing conviction that everyone is entitled to be a captain or colonel in the scheme of things, leaving only a bedraggled remnant to do the work of the world—another distorted point of view which will pass.

Diversity and difference of opinion add interest to life. Certainly it would be embarrassing if all of us were endowed with the same desires and fell in love with the same girl.

A Farmer's Diary

Getting the Daily Paper.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE sun shone warm and bright after several days of coolness. I walked down the long lane, to get the mail from the R.F.D. box at the edge of the gravel road.

The Concord grape vine on the garden fence is full of ripened fruit. The odor of it stopped me, and I sought a cluster of sweet, purple grapes, and stood there, looking at it. It had that misty bloom that comes with natural ripening on the vine. No wonder, I thought, that grapes are pictured as the sign of harvest. What flavor could better express the essence of autumn? It has the sweetness and the tartness—the pleasure and the pain—of the season which it eptomizes. I ate the juicy globules as I walked.

Along my path, moistened in spots by previous days of rain, clouds of yellow butterflies fluttered. The fields of soybeans were yellow in the sun, the rolling heads of buckwheat, heavy and brown to harvest, clothed the slope toward the woods. Frost had not yet silenced the crickets. They chirped incessantly.

All this was background. I, myself, was part of it — one farmer in overalls and muddy shoes.

Out of the vista, into closer view, came smaller bits of color, variety and fragrance. A huge blue butterfly lit on a graceful spray of goldenrod, and sat there, sunning. A thistle stood, with bursting purple blooms and puffs of down upon it, side by side. The wind caught off the shining silken parachutes and sent them sailing along my path. Long, hairy catterpillars crawled along the way, or climbed the fence posts for a higher view. Vivid purple asters showed their lacy clusters among the paler roadside flowers.

I threw away the stem of grape, and reached into the mail box for my daily paper. Its compact roll brought smell of printer's ink—brought rushing, pushing, jostling facts, or screaming headlines. I opened it, and stood beside the box for one brief glance. Then I tucked it under my arm and went to see how many beans the average stalk would yield. A daily paper, after all, is very small—a transient, man-made thing, against the background of the sky and land.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It develops that a body can't even go after a little local color without being hauled in by protective societies and having hot broth forced down one's throat.

There was a girl about 22 years old living in an abandoned shack which was made out of piano boxes up on some off-shoot of the Bronx. It was obvious that anyone living there must be in trying circumstances. And when it became known that a young girl was attempting to wrest an existence under such conditions a wave of pity lapped against the front steps of one of the benevolent organizations of the city and forthwith a committee of well-meaning and kind ladies called on her.

"But I don't want any help," protested the girl . . . "My dear," soothed the motherly spokeswoman, "of course you do. There, there now, dear, don't cry. We intend to see that you have everything you need."

"But I have everything I want, I—I am all right here."

"You poor, brave, dear thing," cooed the ladies in chorus, "just come along with us, now, that's a dear!"

"Listen," cried the now exasperated lass, "I'm writing a book. I have a perfectly good home in Westchester. My father is a doctor. He was here this afternoon. Furthermore, I have a bank account of my own with $3,000 in it. I like it here, and you are distracting me. I appreciate your motives in coming here, but you will be doing me a great favor if you will kindly go away and let me alone."

They went . . . But what a HUFF they went in.

* * *

MEANWHILE, two of our Katharines have come cluck, cluck, clucking back to the avenue . . . They would be Miss Cornell and Miss Locke . . . Miss Locke is to play Ophelia opposite Maurice Evans in Hamlet . . . Miss Cornell is to star in a new play with a Biblical setting . . . It's title is "Herod and Mariamne."

"This play requires a great deal of understanding of those times," Miss Cornell believes, hence, all this preparatory study . . . And there's to be no lost time between rehearsals, because her husband is her director . . . Guthrie McClintic, to whom Miss Cornell has been wedded 17 years, directs all her plays . . . (Q.) "Is he temperamental, Miss Cornell?" . . . (A.) "Of course he is temperamental."

(Q.) "Are you glad to be back?" . . . (A.) "Martha's Vineyard was wonderful, but I am glad to be back. I have so much work to do this year."

(Q.) "Well what about Guthrie? Is he a considerate director?"

(A.) My husband is a very wonderful director . . . He brings out the very best in me . . . I wouldn't want anyone in the theater to direct me but my husband."

Which seems to take care of that.

* * *

MEANWHILE Miss Locke is frantically attempting to find a suitable apartment . . . She wants one not too far away from the theater, and one not too close to the midtown distractions . . . She's the dark-headed little girl who gave such an amazing performance last season in "Having Wonderful Time." Now she's to have the dangerously difficult role of Ophelia against Maurice Evans' Hamlet. Evans is believed by many to be the finest Shakespearean actor on the English stage. New York went overboard on him last year, hence his reappearance on the Rialto this season.

Personal nomination: Best radio show on the air is "Information Please," heard every Tuesday evening. It's impromptu. It has wit and whimsey to spare.

NEW ORLEANS BANISHES FEAR OF MISSISSIPPI

New Morganza Floodway Is Ready to Protect Lowlands in Event of High Water.

(By United Press)

NEW ORLEANS — A two-century-old flood threat to this city has been lifted, Rep. William M. Whittington, D., Miss., chairman of the house flood control committee, believes.

Whittington, completing a tour of the Mississippi river from Rosedale to the Wax Lake outlet of the Atchafalaya floodway, said the Morganza floodway would be ready for operation if a flood rolls down in 1939.

The Morganza floodway, 45 miles above Baton Rouge, La., is a bulwark between the frenzied river in floodtime and the rich, heavily populated Louisiana lowlands at the end of which is located New Orleans.

When the river reaches a dangerous height, a series of levees, purposely weak, will collapse and the yellow water will sweep through miles of comparatively worthless swampland into the Atchafalaya river and thence into the Gulf of Mexico.

Since New Orleans was founded in 1718, the river that is its lifeblood has been a deadly threat to 50,000 people who now live in this elbow of the "Father of Waters."

Floods Weaken Levees.

In recent years, high levees have held the water back from the city. But in the floods of 1922 and 1927, the levees trembled under the load.

New Orleans seemed doomed in 1922. Fourteen miles below the city at Poydras, the levee collapsed. A flood 60 feet deep poured through a crevasse 1,200 feet long into open farming country.

It was a fortunate disaster. New Orleans was saved and the idea of an artificial, controlled crevasse was born.

Five years later, floods again pressed around New Orleans. This time the United States government gave the city authority to blast out the levee at Poydras—at its own expense. The city was again saved at a cost of $8,000,000.

Completion of the Bonnet Carre spillway north of New Orleans virtually freed it of danger.

Its effectiveness was proved in the winter of 1937 when the crest of the Ohio - Upper Mississippi valley flood swept toward the Gulf of Mexico.

U. S. engineers yanked the "needles" out of the flood gates on Bonnet Carre and the crest, routed through six miles of swamp, poured harmlessly into Lake Ponchartrain.

Below Bonnet Carre spillway the river rapidly dropped New Orleans was out of the danger zone and the flood gap was operated at only part capacity. In a pinch, it could take 300,000 cubic feet of water a second from the river — which has not been necessary in the worst of floods.

AFRAID TO MARRY + + +

By HELEN WELSHIMER

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER 15.

In that moment that she heard her name spoken in the lobby, as she left Mary Banner's apartment, Judy thought that Craig had said it. She did not want to see him—not until she had adjusted a mask over her face so he would not see the hurt wonderment in her eyes.

It was not Craig who had spoken. It was Ronald Birrell. In her relief she smiled. He was so strong, so tall, so dependable. She did not even ask why he had come. He told her, though.

"I telephoned Marjorie, searching for you, and she knew you were coming here. Is everything all right?" He asked it almost timidly.

"Everything is lovely!" Everything, but I'm crying way down inside. Maybe I'll never stop. Just cry on and on for years, she was telling herself.

"Judy, you are grand." He said it solemnly, worshipfully. The tone reminded her of something. Ah, now she knew. Craig's voice when he mentioned Mary. But Ronald must not think of her in that way. She was finished with love, forever and forever.

He did not ask her if she were free. He led her to his car and was quiet until they had driven a few blocks. Then he put an irrelevant question to her.

"Do you like to fish?"

"I used to like to, when I was little. Sometimes my father took me with him. That was before he married Sarita. It's been years since I tried."

"I know of a fishing lodge up in Connecticut where I go sometimes. I have some friends, another lawyer and his wife, who like it there. It's late for fishing, I know, but I like to sit in a boat, under a gray sky, and think. Would you go this week-end?"

"Yes, I'd like to."

* * *

As simply as that it was settled.

Judy's rent was more than a week overdue, and her wardrobe had lost one dress and one hat, sold for money with which to buy food. Resolutely she put aside these worries. She would take them up when she came back Sunday night.

It was wholesome and merry and happy in the woods and on the lake. She lay awake the first night hearing the night sounds, watching the play of long moonlight on the water, breathing deeply of cold, sharp air. In the other bunk in the alcove Mrs. Thomas, the lawyer's wife, slept quietly. From the lower floor, where the two men still sat by the fire, came the low accents of their voices.

The bands that had been clutching her heart relaxed. For the first time in many days Craig didn't matter. Judy fell asleep, happy and contented.

The spell held all through Saturday and Sunday. A pleasant companionship developed, naturally. Ronald displayed a protective attitude toward her that was comforting after the weeks of battling employment offices.

They were headed for the city on Sunday evening when he asked her about her job hunting.

"No good," she answered. "But this is a new week, a better week. I know I'll find something."

"Are you free Thursday night?" he asked.

Thursday! That was four days away. He wasn't in any hurry to see more of her. Well, she wouldn't let him know that she cared.

"Sorry, not Thursday. But Friday is open."

"I can't make it Friday." He said it regretfully. "What about Saturday?"

"That will be fine."

"I wish I could make it sooner—a week's such a long time to wait—but the Bolings are having a shindig tomorrow night and I'm taking Abbey to the theater Wednesday. I have to work Tuesday—that's the way it goes."

"Yes, isn't it?" Judy asked too quietly. Never let yourself get excited again, Judy Rogers, she was reciting inwardly. You've had all sorts of lessons. Abbey Boling has what you haven't—money. Good old coin of the realm. Men like it. Abbey has yellow hair, too. Men go ga-ga over that. Don't be forgetting.

* * *

Then she remembered that kiss, and the words that Ronald had told Marjorie about the one girl, a brown-haired girl, he could marry, and the reverence in his tone. It was too complicated. Thank fortune she wouldn't have time to think. She must get a job.

Ronald did not go with Judy into the hotel. There was no parking place and it was late. She was glad that he had not, a few moments later. If he had, she might have lingered, talking to him, and the clerk at the desk might have spoken to her in his presence. As it was, she went directly to her room. Her key did not seem to fit. She examined it carefully. It bore her room number. She inserted it in the lock again. It would not move.

Realization came slowly. She was locked out! Her possessions were locked in. They would be held until she paid her rent. She began to laugh. She leaned against the door of the room and shook until her stomach ached, her head throbbed, her throat hurt.

Finally she went downstairs. She approached the cashier.

"Im sorry, Miss Rogers, but you are late with your rent," he said. "Until it is paid, I can't let you in."

"It wasn't such a pleasant room anyway," Judy answered, summoning a smile from somewhere. "I'll be giving it up tomorrow when I pay you."

* * *

She walked to the door, holding her bag. In it were sports clothes, and one evening outfit, taken along in case there was a country club where the party might dine on Saturday night. There had not been, and she was glad.

She was standing in the doorway when the honking of a car attracted her attention. It was Ronald. Her first instinct was to run. Her second was to face it. She walked to the side of the car. He held out a small black leather purse.

"You dropped it," he said. "It must have fallen out of your bag when you reached for a powder puff or lipstick."

"Thanks." It held 35 cents. She hoped he hadn't looked inside. "Mind giving me a lift to the nearest subway?"

"I'll do better than that. I'll take you. Where are you going?"

"Either the Grand Central Station or Marjorie's. I didn't want to accept favors, even when they were thrust upon me, and now I'm asking them. Maybe a bench wouldn't be hard if I strolled around often enough..."

He came directly to the point. "Locked out?"

"Until I pay up my rent."

"Ronald said something softly under his breath. Then he faced her. "Judy, let me make you a loan. It's purely business."

"No." Her head came up proudly, the eyebrows, the smile, the whole contour winging, singing upward. "I appreciate it. But I can't do it. I'll get a job. I'm designing more clothes all the time."

"The market is filled with ambitious young designers, but I'm proud of you. You'll make the grade, Judy. You have to!"

"Why?" she asked curiously.

He hesitated. "Well—just because I want you to."

Bing Crosby turns away from his usual energetic and fast stepping roles in "Sing, You Sinners," to play a happy-go-lucky, ne'er-do-well son of a small town family who wins fame, not through his own efforts but by sheer luck. Fred MacMurray plays the dependable son whose romance with the girl next door is one broken wedding date after another. Elizabeth Patterson and Donald O'Connor are important to the interest and the entertainment.

COCKER SPANIEL

Spanyell family dates back to 1386. Cocker is smallest of family. A very popular pure-bred dog in U. S. Standard colors range from solid blacks, reds, to shades of cream; liver red and combinations. Versatile, can be trained into retriever. Great lover of human family.

HE'S GIVING HIS NERVES A REST

...AND SO IS HE

HAVE you noticed how a dog, in the midst of play, suddenly stops and rests? His nerve system—as complicated and high-strung as our own—has signalled that it's time to relax! Man, unfortunately, is less sensitive to the warnings of his nerves. Though nerves may need a restful pause, we are inclined to press on in our absorbing tasks—relentlessly—forgetful of mounting nerve strain. When we find ourselves tense, irritable, upset, we may not even realize why. Don't let tension tie your nerves in a knot. Make it your pleasant rule to break nerve tension often through the day—TO LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Feel how gratefully nerves welcome the mellow intermission that your nearby package of Camels suggests. And not only do smokers find Camel's costlier tobaccos soothing to the nerves—but milder, too—ripe-rich in flavor—completely enjoyable from every angle!

Millions of people who live happily

LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL

FLAGSHIP PILOT. Captain Walter J. Hunter of American Airlines, speaks for his profession when he says: "Ragged nerves and flying don't mix. I head off nerve tension by giving my nerves regular rests—I let up and light up a Camel. I find Camels soothing to the nerves."

DID YOU KNOW:

—that the grower of tobacco also cures it—in many cases, in barns equipped to apply heat without smoke? That the planter works day and night until the curing process is completed? Selection of Camel's tobaccos requires the services of men familiar with every phase of growing, curing, and aging choice tobacco. It is well known in the tobacco trade that Camel cigarettes are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

"RUSH ASSIGNMENTS, deadlines, phone calls would wreck my nerves," says New York newspaper woman Estelle Karon, "if I didn't pause frequently. I let up often and light up a Camel. Camels soothe my nerves. I work better—get more fun."

GOOD LUCK IN STYLE

PARIS—(AP)—Good luck for an afternoon coat takes the form of four-leafed clovers cut out of gray kidskin fur. The coat is almond green woolen, and the clovers dot the front and spot the lapel. This is Lanvin's idea. Molyneux uses large disks of black Persian lamb to run down both fronts of a princess evening coat in black wool. As for size, a small pancake would just cover a disk.

NEW FUR

PARIS—(AP)—Add to the dictionary furs, the word "guanaco"—and the definition—South American skunk. As for the description, the fur is long haired, with light tan under-hairs, and top-hairs of dark brown. Its chief use if for sports, in long or short swagger coats. Vera Borea features a long coat of guanaco, worn over a suit with a plaid wool jacket and a plain rusty red wool skirt.

THREE CLERGYMEN TAKE PART IN CEREMONY

Miss Stella Dandakis Becomes Bride of Steven Georgopulos at Grace Episcopal Church Sunday Afternoon.

AMONG the weddings of this month which have attracted attention of friends and relatives from nearby and distant cities was the marriage yesterday at 4 p. m. of Miss Stella Dandakis to Steven Georgopulos. The ceremony was read by Rev. M. G. Nicola, pastor of the church, assisted by Father Kapenakes of Akron and Father Gougoutos of Mansfield.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dandakis, 278 West Sixth street, appeared in a cut velvet dress made on flowing formal lines with a veil descending in a long train. Her headdress included a rhinestone bandeau. She carried a colonial bouquet of gardenias, lilies-of-the-valley, and a center of a white orchid. The latter bloom was removed and worn by Mrs. Georgopulos for her going away corsage.

She was attended by Mrs. Thomas Broad, wife of Mr. Georgopulos' godfather and best man, who wore a gown of velvet. Her bridesmaids, who wore taffeta gowns in fall shades, were the Misses Helen Kahler, Susan Mellio and Mrs. S. A. Breres, matron of honor. Dispona Nickalaus was the flower girl and Sonny Athen the ring bearer. All the attendants carried colonial bouquets of roses and baby chrysanthemums.

In addition to the best man the ushers attending Mr. Georgopulos were Walter Wentz, Gordon Brady, Bud DeWitt and Harry Dandakis.

The couple approached the altar to the strains of nuptial music furnished by Mrs. Dean Eckert and the Grace Episcopal Boys' choir. The aisle was laid with white satin, and each pew was marked with a ribbon of white satin and large matching bows.

Palms and ferns and beauty baskets of large white chrysanthemums and jardinieres of chrysanthemums and pompons stood on the altar and around the church chancel.

The double ring ceremony was read by candlelight.

The two mothers wore simple frocks with orchids for the ceremony. After the ceremony a dinner was served to 350 guests at the Moose hall. Eugene Smart furnished dinner music. A dance followed on the second floor with music furnished by an eight-piece Akron orchestra. The stage was decorated with beauty baskets of chrysanthemums, palms and ferns.

Guests were present from Anderson, Ind., Kalamazoo, Mich., Auburn, N. Y., and surrounding communities.

Mr. Georgopulos, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Georgopulos, Linden road, is associated with his father at the Parkway restaurant.
